SPANISH YACHTS BEATEN IN FIRST OF SONDER RACES

MARBLEHEAD, Aug. 17.—The Americans cefeated the Spaniards to-day in the first of the international Sonder racing competitions, all three of the American boats finishing before the foreign competitors.

The Harpoon crossed the line first, but she was disqualified. This left the three winners of the race as follows:

Beaver, first.
Cima, second.
Chonta, third.
Papoose, fourth.
Mosquito II., fifth.

The Harpoon was disqualified by fouling the flag at the fifth mark in the race.

The Chonta was a bad fourth, being about thirteen minutes behind the Cima, while her Spanish sisters, the Papoose and Mosquito II., trailed hopelessly in the rear.

The Cima is owned by Guy Lowell of the Eastern Yacht Club of this place. He was assisted in the sailing of the little craft by J. Robinson Harding and C. A. Mower.

Here is the unofficial time of the six boats:

Harpoon	1:12:30
Beaver	1:12:33
Cima	1:12:52
Chonta	1:25:31
Papoose	1:28:17
Mosquito II.	1:31:43

Cannonade Greets Winner.

Cannons boomed, vociferous cheers rent the air, whistles from scores of craft rang out and there was a great waving of flags and other bright colors.

The crowd was beautifully impartial, however, and when the badly beaten Spaniards swept in they were surprised at the greeting they received.

The Cima led off gallantly at the start of the second round of the course. But the two other American boats began to show their fleetness, and by the time the first mark had been rounded the Beaver and Harpoon in the order named had shot to the front of the Cima.

The Chonta led the Spanish trio. This little craft was about nine minutes behind the leading boat, and to those on shore it certainly looked like an American day. The Papoose and the Mosquito were far in the rear of the Beaver, apparently having a very tough time of it.

In the run to the second mark the three Americans still retained their lead in the order they had assumed after passing the first mark—Beaver, Harpoon and Cima, the Chonta trailing them.

Yankees All Ahead

At the end of the first round of 7½ miles, completing half of the course, the American yachts all led their Spanish rivals, the Cima leading the field at the turn, closely followed four seconds later by the Beaver, which was three seconds ahead of the Harpoon.

The first Spanish boat to complete the round was the Chonta, nearly four minutes behind the Harpoon, the last of the American boats. Four minutes behind the Chonta came the Papoose, and the Mosquito brought up the rear two minutes behind the Papoose.

After rounding the first mark on the first leg of the first round the Cima, which up to that point had been behind the Harpoon and Beaver, gradually drew up on both of them, and after turning the second mark, passed them on the run home, finishing a few seconds ahead of them.

The Summary.

The unofficial summary of the first round follows:

Cima	12:08:30
Beaver	12:08:34
Harpoon	12:08:37
Chonta	12:12:05
Papoose	12:16:32
Mosquito	12:18.40

The first round was completed in about an hour, and at the end of it, it was apparent that the only Spanish competitor which the American boats had to reckon with at all was the Chonta.

Shortly after the beginning of the first round, the presidential yacht Sylph steamed out of Beverly and went half

TWO FLY CHANNEL IN AERO

LONDON, Aug. 17.—For the first time in the history of aviation, the English channel was crossed to-day by two men in one aeroplane. This made the fourth time the channel has been flown over in a little more than a year.

Aviator John Moissant, a young Spaniard, who left Paris last night headed for London, in contention with Latham, arrived near Deal to-day. With him was his mechanician, who had accompanied him from Amiens.

Though his mcahine pitched terrifically in stiff blows over the channel, and the cold was so intense that the men were almost frozen, they covered twenty-six miles in thirty-six minutes, coming from Calais.

After warming himself, Moissant said he would hasten on, aiming at the Crystal Palace, London. It is sixty-five miles from Deal to London.

Latham started from Amiens to continue his flight, but collided with a tree. His machine was wrecked but he was unhurt.

Moissant left Amiens at 5:10 o'clock with his passenger. He made the 20-mile flight to Calais without difficulty, and on arriving there was delayed only by the necessity of waiting for the boat detailed to accompany him across the English channel.

Moissant started unannounced several hours after Latham yesterday. Each aimed to capture the London Daily Mail's $25,000 prize, offered for the first no-halt flight between London and Paris. The men's failure to keep aloft last evening barred them from the prize, but Moissant determined to keep on for the honor of being the first to traverse the distance between the capitals by aeroplane.

When Moissant left Calais a strong breeze was blowing. The novice appeared to have mastered his machine, however, and he flew well, heading straight for the Dover point across the channel.

He was watched by crowds that lined the French shore for five miles and crowded in ranks on the heights about Calais.

TARS FEAST AT BIG CLAMBAKE AT NEWPORT

NEWPORT, Aug. 17.—While 10,000 persons looked on, 3,600 sailors from the warships in the North Atlantic squadron sat down to a colossal clambake beginning at 1 o'clock this afternoon. This was the first of three days of feasting. The other sailors in the fleet will be entertained tomorrow and Friday. In all 12,000 will enjoy the hospitality of the city.

The parade this forenoon after the warship crews had landed was a notable event. Around the Government landing were gathered 3,000 spectators, each one with a red pennant, bearing the word "Welcome." Rear-Admiral Seaton Schroeder, commanding officer of the fleet, was cheered as he came off his launch from the flagship Connecticut. Earlier in the day Rear-Admiral Schroeder had exchanged formal visits with Acting Mayor William Shepley.

Acting Mayor Heads Parade.

The procession was headed by the admiral, the acting Mayor, Alderman J. H. Mahoney, and former Mayors F. P. Garrettson and W. P. Clark. Next in line came the marine band from the Connecticut. Another band in the march was the Fort Adams band, hired by the city.

The parade led through the principal streets of Newport to the old circus lot on Broadway, where were gathered naval officers and officials and prominent citizens, including Senator George Peabody Wetmore, Congressman William P. Sheffield, and many others.

Use Carload of Clams.

An entire carload of clams was used in the bake. Each sailor was handed a souvenir menu card, bearing a picture of the Old Stone Mill, pictures of torpedo boats and other naval craft, with a drawing of a large clam, and drawings of a bluejacket and a naval officer.

After the bake the sailors sang "America," and followed up with popular songs of the day.

Rousing cheers were given in response to the toast "Newport." The officers expressed themselves as well pleased with the reception the people of Newport had given the squadron.

Commodore Arthur Curtiss James of the New York Yacht Club squadron has bought 100 flags with pictures of the Connecticut, which he will use in decorating his yacht. The commodore will entertain the officers of the fleet, on Friday, on the yacht.

Late this afternoon Mrs. Herman Oelrichs entertained the 3600 sailors at a park theatre.

LEBLANC WINS $50,000 FRENCH AIRSHIP RACE

PARIS, Aug. 17.—The greatest air race ever held ended to-day, when M. LeBlanc alighted at Issy Les Moulineaux, the winner of the $20,000 prize offered by Le Matin, for the shortest time in the 490 mile cross country race over northern France which began August 7. Twenty minutes after the winner came down, Aubrun, who has waged a sensational duel with LeBlanc from the first day, shot his aeroplane to the aviation field at Issy. Both men used monoplanes.

Additional prizes for the best time on each of the six laps and other awards brought the total of prizes at the stake in the race to $52,400.

The total elapsed time of the winner was 11 hours, 58 minutes, 40 seconds, and that of Auburn 13 hours, 26 minutes 57 seconds.

The final stage of the race was run from Amiens. The distance to Paris was a little more than sixty-five miles. Le Blanc arose at 5:03 a. m., and two minutes later, before he was out of sight of the cheering Amiens throng, his rival, Aubrun, was off after him, winging steadily. Ten minutes later followed Lagagneux, the only biplanist to make a favorable showing with the monoplane drivers.

At 6.40 the watchers at Issy called out the announcement of an aviator's appearance. Just five minutes later Le Blanc, cool amid the plaudits of the crowds, was standing beside his dying motor on the ground asking for a cigarette. His sangfroid equalled that of Hubert Latham, who in his first attempt to cross the channel a year ago, was found sitting in his plane on the sea surface smoking a cigarette.

Big Reception for Victor.

Le Blanc was the favorite, and he got a favorite's reception, but Aubrun had no cause to complain of lack of warmth in his welcome when he swooped his machine down to a spot near that where his conqueror had landed.

In the van of the watching crowd was Le Blanc. As Aubrun took in the situation he vaulted from his seat, ran to Le Blanc, shouting congratulations.

The great race started on August 7 with eight competitors. More than half of the entrants had failed to show up, but eight set off for Troyes, the first stop. In the first leg Le Blanc and Aubrun took the lead which they maintained throughout. Besides them there were Hamet, also a monoplanist; Lindpainter, a Belgian; Lagagneux and Charles Weymann, the American entry, all of whom used biplanes, and Bregi and Busson. The last two had bad luck before they reached Troyes and dropped out of the contest. Others fell by the wayside from time to time.

The actual distance marked out was 782 kilometers by air line—a little more than 488 miles. Through losing their way on several occasions and being driven from their courses by high winds, the actual distance covered by those who finished was to-day declared to be well over 500 miles for each.

The barkentine Kingdom, of the "fleet" of the Holy Ghost and Us Society, was between Boston Light and Boston Lightship at noon to-day, according to the report made by Captain Anderson of the freighter Kentucky, Copenhagen to Boston. The point where Captain Anderson sighted the Elijah ship was outside the three-mile limit. From the care the vessel is taking to keep beyond the jurisdiction of the authorities the belief is general that Rev. Mr. Sandford, head of the Shilohites, is aboard. The Kingdom has been hovering off Boston Harbor for twenty-four hours, having come down from Portland. There the ship evaded Sheriff Trefethen, who is anxious to serve a subpoena on Sandford.

A MYSTERIOUS ROOM IN COURT HOUSE IS FOUND

Workmen engaged in making alterations at the Pemberton Square Court House discovered with astonishment to-day a mysterious room with seven cot beds near the second session of the Municipal Court.

No one could imagine what the room was intended for, but finally a court employe recalled that seventeen years ago, when the court house was opened, mention was made in the newspaers of a special rom to be used as a hospital in caring for persons in court who might become ill.

Years rolled by and everybody forgot the hospital feature of the court house. No employe of the place was rated as an orderly or nurse, and no one had occasion to use the room. The labyrinth of stairs, doors and entryways, confusing in themselves, never gave a clew to it.

To-day several workmen began tearing down the walls in the corridor next to the hospital. One of them pushed a crowbar through the wall and peered through. His surprise was great when he discovered the room. Several court officers who have been attached to the court for years were called and they entered the room through an aperture made by the workmen. They found seven cot beds and other hospital paraphernalia. It was then learned that the entrance to the room could have been made from the second session of the Municipal Court and the Judge's lobby.

The room has seven windows looking out into the courtyard. The walls of the room were blistered by escaping steam.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine"

Don't Miss Reading This Thrilling Story

"Alias Jimmy Valentine," the story of one of the most successful plays of recent seasons, will begin in the BOSTON AMERICAN next Saturday. It is a story that opens with action and ends happily. It is all action, in fact, for the life of a yeggman with a clever and relentless detective ever on his heels does not allow much time for anything else but action.

"Jimmy" is the prince of yeggmen, a man with a wonderfully developed sense of touch. His light fingers can open any modern safe, and he is the puzzle and despair of the police.

He lands in Sing Sing, but is pardoned because he has saved a rich girl's life at the risk of his own. She is the daughter of a banker, and she starts him on the straight life by having her father employ him in his bank. The story of his fight to keep straight and to avoid being sent back to Sing Sing by Doyle, the detective, is full of thrills. It is a clean, exciting, wholesome story, and was written for the BOSTON AMERICAN by John A. Moroso, who novelized "The Spendthrift."

SALEM'S SHOE STRIKERS ADD TO THEIR RANKS

SALEM, Aug. 17.—The ranks of the striking shoe workers were strengthened to-day when a number of workmen in several shops failed to report for work and instead attended the several meetings held at strike headquarters. No outbreaks of any kind are threatened, although it is thought that when the factories close for the day the girl strikers and some of the strike leaders will be active in trying to persuade those now at work to join the strike.

Ten stock fitters at the L. G. Straw & Dunham Company plant joined the strikers to-day bringing the total workmen who have left the factory up to sixty. It is claimed that only one stock fitter is now at work in the factory. Several more employes of the E. S. Woodbury factory left work to-day. It is now thought that about 1,000 workmen are on strike.

Nearly one hundred non-union shoe workers joined the strikers to-day. Twenty-five of these have applied for union membership.

At the three meetings held at strike headquarters to-day resolutions were adopted to the effect that no strike aid funds would be sought at the present time.

Refuse Outside Aid.

National Organizer John R. Oldham, who is in charge of the strike, said to-day: "The men have all decided that they will not ask other unions to aid them in the present trouble. They are willing to give their time and efforts to bringing their employers to a realization of what union labor wants, and until hard pressed for funds will finance their own campaign.

"I think that conferences will be soon arranged with the employers and the whole difficulty settled. I understand that several of the shoe manufacturers regret the strike and do not wish the impression to go forth that they are opposed to union labor.

The outlook for a settlement is bright. The Salem Board of Trade has not moved in the matter because the business men feel that an understanding will soon be reached.

"There will be no strike at the Beverly factories. At least, none of the workmen there will be called out to-day. I think that there has been a misunderstanding, and that to win the union men will not have to make the strike any broader in scope than it now is."

May Close Big Plant.

Jonathan Brown, of Jonathan Brown & Sons' factory, where 150 are on strike, said to-day: "I regret that the strike has been called. But I do not now see just what can be done to help matters. I think that if more of the workmen leave our factory we may have to close down."

Details of police were sent to all the factories to-day, but no disturbances occurred. Mayor Howard was about early, and it is thought that through his efforts conferences may be held to-day between representatives of the strikers and the manufacturers.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 200,000 more than its next highest competitor and 75,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

SONDER BOATS OPEN GREAT CONTEST TO-DAY FOR WORLD'S HONORS

round the course with the racers. She did not fly the President's flag, so it is presumed that President Taft was not on board, and later she returned to Burgess Point.

The United States revenue cutters Gresham, Androscoggin and Acushnet continually sounded their whistles, warning yachts off the path of the racers, for there were fully one hundred craft following the boats, while the rocks along the shore at Marblehead were crowded with yachting enthusiasts.

Wind From Southeast.

When the race started at 11:10 the wind was from the southeast, and was blowing a twelve-knot breeze. There was a heavy roll that seemed to interfere with the little boats to some extent.

The course was triangular to-day.

When the whistle blew all of the six boats got away almost together. The Harpoon, however, crossed the starting line a little in the lead.

The Beaver came along a few seconds in the rear of the Harpoon. Then came the Cima and the Spanish boats, with the Chonta leading the foreigners.

Five minutes from the start the Harpoon and Beaver had an exciting luffing match, the two boats running very closely together.

Seven minutes from the start the Harpoon was only a few feet in the lead of the Beaver. The Harpoon came about on a starboard tack and the Beaver followed suit.

Two minutes after the Cima came about and crossed the two leaders in the race slightly to the stern.

Chonta Does Well.

The Chonta pulled pretty well to the lead of her two sisters and maintained the same tack with which she started. Twenty minutes from the start the Beaver seemed to have a little the better of the Harpoon and she was leading as the competitors neared the first mark, which is two and a half miles from the starting point.

The harbor was lined with hundreds of yachts, motor boats, launches and various other kinds of craft all bedecked with flags and bunting, emblematic of both countries, in true holiday attire.

The second race will be from the starting line, to and around a mark three miles to windward or leeward and return, twice around, a distance of twelve miles.

In all there will be five races, unless no winner is decided. In case the deciding race is the third, the winner will not be allowed to compete in the further races.

Should the first four races not have resulted in a decision, only the winners of these four races can take part in the fifth race. If there is no winner then, owing to two yachts each having won two races, then a sixth race shall be sailed between these two yachts.

The yacht winning the first three races will win the cup offered by President Taft.

The cup offered by Governor Draper will be awarded on points in the first four races. A win counts six points, a second five, a third four and so on.

NEBRASKA GIVES BRYAN REBUKE

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 17.—William J. Bryan has been rebuked by the Democrats in his fight for county option, according to the latest available returns of the first State-wide direct primaries. Congressman Norris, the insurgent leader who introduced into Congress the resolution that resulted in Speaker Cannon being barred from the Rules Committee, has been returned without opposition. A heavy vote was polled, but the Republican figures were lower than in years, while the Democratic total has reached a high water mark. This was due to the fact that State Senator Aldrich, Republican "dry" nominee for the governorship, got many Democratic "dry" votes, and Jim Dahlman, the cowboy Mayor and Democratic "wet" leader, cut into the Republican "wet" support. Aldrich, an insurgent, to-day claimed victory over ex-State Senator Cady, a standpatter.

The returns showed G. M. Hitchcock, Democrat, running about 2 to 1 over R. L. Metcalf, Bryan's associate, for the United States Senatorship.

The Democratic gubernatorial race to-day settled down to a neck and neck contest between Dahlman and Governor Shallenberger. The result may be in doubt until the votes are all counted.

HITCHCOCK DENIES RUMOR.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Postmaster-General Hitchcock arrived in Chicago to-day, on his way to the postmasters' convention at Peoria, Ill. It was intimated that his stop here was made to help in the decapitation of Secretary Ballinger. He denied this, however, and declared he would have nothing to do with plans concerning Ballinger.

INSURGENTS WIN IN CALIFORNIA

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—Insurgency has made another triumph in California. This was made certain to-day when the returns of the State's first general direct primary began to arrive in full showing that Hiram W. Johnson, the candidate of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League, and in whose behalf Gifford Pinchot made eight speeches, had secured the gubernatorial nomination. The regular Republicans concede his victory. With five in the field Alden Anderson, the candidate of the regular machine, trailed as third, Charles F. Curry running second.

Phil Stanton, Speaker of the lower house of the Legislature, lost even in the southern part of the State, Johnson beating him there. The Lincoln-Roosevelt League leaders to-day claimed a victory for the entire State ticket. The figures showed Attorney-General Webb leading Frank McGowan easily.

The insurgents claimed a victory for Judge John D. Works of Los Angeles, in the advisory vote for United States Senator. Of the congressional fights, William Kent beat Congressman McKinley in the Second District. Congressman Hayes, who aligned himself with the insurgents, claims the fight over Mayor Davison of San Jose. In the Seventh William D. Stephens gave Congressman McLachlan a hard run, and in the eighth L. B. Kirby, insurgent, claims to have been nominated over Congressman S. C. Sith.

FINDS LARD SALES ARE UNDERWEIGHT

"Only one dealer in Boston so far as I have been able to determine gives honest weight in pails of lard. I propose to conduct a rigid campaign against such short weights." Sealer of Weights and Measures Charles B. Woolley made this announcement to-day in discussing an investigation he had made into the measures in which lard was sold. All of the manufacturers with one exception weigh the pail in computing what is sold to the consumer as a three, five or ten pound pail of lard. The result is that the ordinary consumer is cheated out of from two to eight ounces of lard.

HARVARD AIR FLIGHT PRIZES OF $37,400

As a result of a conference held between the Harvard Aeronautical Society's representatives and Clifford B. Harmon, Charles F. Willard and Captain Thomas S. Baldwin, for the aviators who are to fly in Boston next month, the final announcement of the prize list and the conditions under which the various events are to be conducted was made to-day.

The nine events are each known as "series." In all $37,400 in prizes is offered, and it is believed that this amount will be increased before the opening of the meeting on September 3 at Squantum Point.

In the first contest the aviators make three laps around the course each day for speed, receiving points credit for each day's work. The man with the highest score wins $3,000 and the second man $2,000. A prize of $1,000 for a world's record is also offered.

Prize for Slow Time.

The same plan is carried out in the contest for similar prizes in the contest for height and duration, the prizes in the latter series being $2,000 for the winner and $1,000 for second man. The aviator who stays in the air longer than any other sky jockey has will receive $1,000.

In the contest for distance points credit will be given the flier travelling the greatest number of times around the course each day, the highest total of points for the nine days bringing a reward of $2,000 with $1,000 for the runner up. A world's record breaker wins $1,000.

The men making the slowest time in negotiating three laps of the course wins $1,000 and $500 respectively.

To win the prizes of $100 and $50 in the get-away series the aviators must be first and second in being on the ground, the shortest distance from the start to the point where the chassis leaves the ground, running forward, and then flying once around the course.

Fly to Boston Light.

Prizes of $500 and $250 are given for landing nearest a designated spot after flying at least once around the course.

The eighth series is for the trip against time to the Stadium and thence to Boston Light and return without touching the ground, for the prize of $10,000. Before starting and at the finish the aviator must go once around the course at Squantum Point.

The ninth series is a cash prize of $5,000 for dropping missiles representing bombs into the funnels of a dummy battleship. Ten trials may be made daily, none of which may be made at a height less than 100 feet, the flier putting the greatest number of "bombs" into the funnels carrying off the prize.

FRIENDS WILL SEEK LIBERTY FOR RUSSIAN

New York friends have come to the rescue of Julius Wezosol, who was arrested at Quincy on the charge of participating in the $250,000 robbery of the imperial treasury of Russia three years ago at Tiflis, when several persons were killed as the result of a bomb explosion. The New York countrymen of Wezosol sent Simon O. Pollock, a lawyer to Boston to see what he could do for the prisoner.

Pollock was the attorney who was instrumental in keeping John Prude, a Russian from being sent back to Russia from this country some years ago when the fight attracted world wide attention. The labor unions took up the matter in behalf of Prude and he won out.

It is supposed that Pollock is employed to look out for Russians in trouble. The authorities have charged that they have evidence that Wezosol is an Anarchist. When Pollock went to the Federal Building and asked to be allowed to see the prisoner, who is in the Charles Street Jail, Marshal Murchie refused to permit him to see Wezosol.

Lawyer Joseph Michelman, who had been retained by Wezosol, had a talk with Pollock, and after that it was arranged that the two lawyers could see the prisoner. They went to the Charles street jail and had a long talk with him.

Month's Treatment FREE

Including All Medicines Given to All Deaf Patients Who Begin or Renew Treatment at the Offices of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians, 18 Boylston Street, on or Before Aug. 31st. There Will Be No Charge for Consultation or the Most Careful Examinations With the X-Ray. Only 12 Days Remain.

The Osmo-Chemic Physicians, the great scientists, in order to demonstrate their skill in the cure of Deafness by the new Discovery, will give all deaf patients who begin or renew treatment on or before August 31st, 1910, one month's treatment, including all medicines, ABSOLUTELY FREE. This liberal offer will bring the cost of a course of treatment sufficient to cure the most obstinate curable chronic diseases within the reach of all. Any one whose hearing is impaired can avail themselves of this liberal offer. It is limited only as to time. It is clear that such an offer cannot be continued indefinitely. Only 12 days remain.

DON'T WAIT if you are deaf and want to be cured begin a course of treatment at the office of the Osmo-Chemic Physicians, Room 10, No. 18 Boylston St., on or before August 31st and you will have consultation and examination with the perfected X-Ray and a month's treatment absolutely free.

NEW TREATMENT FOR DEAFNESS

In the treatment of thousands of cases of catarrh the Osmo-Chemic physicians noticed that many of their patients complained of dullness of hearing, with head noises of different kinds. On investigation they found that nearly all cases of deafness, head noises, discharging ears and ordinary dullness of hearing were due to an extension of the catarrhal process along the mucous membrane of the throat, up the Eustachian tube into the middle ear. In the same way the ear becomes diseased and the hearing affected from the extension of sore throat, from scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles and typhoid fever, and this condition is as distinctly curable as deafness from catarrh of the nose and throat. In fact, under the Osmo-Chemic treatment all conditions of deafness, except those where the drum of the ear is totally destroyed, are curable.

Age and duration of disease is no detriment to cure, as cases where the patient had passed seventy years, and where the deafness had lasted for more than fifty years have been cured.

The Osmo-Chemic Catarrh treatment, supplemented by the Osmo-Chemic Electric Vibrator, are together a certain cure for all those cases of deafness where the ear drums are not entirely destroyed. No matter how much treatment you may have had; no matter how long you have been deaf; no matter how many physicians have told you that your hearing could not be restored, the Osmo-Chemic Deafness treatment will restore your hearing. The Osmo-Chemic Electric Vibrator has restored the sense of sound to thousands of ears after doctors had pronounced the cases absolutely incurable. Not only restored the sense of sound, but has rendered the hearing as acute as before disease had attacked the ears.

SHERMAN HURRIES TO TAFT, CONFERS ABOUT ROOSEVELT

Vice-President James S. Sherman is at Beverly in conference with President Taft to-day, having come from his home in Utica, N. Y., last night, and it is safe to say that the stinging rebuke that was administered to Theodore Roosevelt, when he was turned down yesterday by the New York Republican State Committee as temporary chairman of the Republican State Convention to be held next month, was one of the chief themes of the big talk.

ROOSEVELT AN AVOWED INSURGENT.

Roosevelt was defeated by a vote of 20 to 15, and Vice-President Sherman was chosen as the temporary presiding officer of the Republican gathering at Saratoga on September 27.

That Roosevelt is an out-and-out insurgent, and that Taft, Sherman, Lodge, Aldrich and the rest of the old guard must take that fact into consideration now, is the handwriting on the wall that is being pointed out now by Republicans of discernment.

State committeemen charged Roosevelt yesterday to his face with deliberately violating a written agreement with Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, National Committeeman William L. Ward and Postmaster Fred Greiner, before his departure for his hunting trip, that he would not interfere in politics on his return; with switching from an ardent anti-direct nomination advocate to a champion of Hughes theories after a short conversation with the Governor of New York at the last Harvard Commencement, and with deliberately placing himself at the head of a band of "amateurs" to drive out of office and politics stalwart allies who made him Governor, Vice-President and President.

Warning to the Party.

Colonel Roosevelt came back at his antagonists with another "written statement" in which he warned the Republican party of New York that he is likely to stir up the State convention with a speech that will puncture the thick skin of the Grand Old Party elephant.

This is the statement that Colonel Roosevelt issued:

> To the various persons who asked me whether I would accept the position of temporary chairman of the State convention I said I would do so only if they were sure, after knowing my attitude, that they desired me, because my speech would be of such a character that it might help if the convention nominated the right kind of a man, on a clear-cut, progressive platform; but that it would hurt if neither the right kind of a man were nominated nor the right kind of a platform adopted.

Change of Position.

Roosevelt admitted that he had changed his attitude on direct nominations very suddenly. But he avowed his purpose to go as a delegate to the Saratoga convention, from his home district, and deliver the speech from the floor he had intended to deliver from the platform. In this he plans to name the "right kind of a man" for Governor. Griscom hinted at William S. Bennett as first choice last night, and the adoption of a "progressive platform."

Anti-Roosevelt leaders retorted: "We will name our own candidates and frame our own platform. This is a fight for our very existence."

The Vice-President said to-day that he is eager to harmonize, as far as lies in his power, all factional differences in the party in New York State and nation, and he does not believe any good purpose would be served or party harmony improved by needless discussion of any controversies at this time.

As to the rebuke to Roosevelt, the Vice-President had no comment to make. However, he considers his selection as temporary chairman a very substantial indorsement of the Taft administration, and this is a source of gratification to him.

Following the State Committee meeting Chairman Woodruff shouted:

"This man Griscom has been trying to 'do' me and found the 'Old Guard' behind me. I nominate him for president of the Ananias Club. No matter what he may say, he never had authority from either Taft or Roosevelt to 'butt' into this meeting and present Roosevelt's name."

Chairman Griscom answered:

"This fight will be carried to the State convention. Woodruff must go. Both Taft and Roosevelt authorized me to present Roosevelt's name."

As to this particular phase of the controversy, Colonel Roosevelt, seen at his office, remarked:

"I did not expect my name to be presented to-day, although I thought it would be at the State convention. I have no criticism of Griscom to offer."

Convention Will Be Stormy.

Yesterday's stormy fight in the committee is regarded as merely the forerunner of perhaps the most tempestuous State convention ever held by the New York Republicans. The "Old Guard" programme had been secretly arranged the night before at conferences between Vice-President Sherman, Chairman Woodruff, National Committeeman Ward, Francis Hendricks, William Barnes, Jr., and Speaker Wadsworth, at the Hotel Manhattan.

Hard Blow for Griscom.

The defeat of Roosevelt, short and sharp, came as a shock to his friend Griscom. This is Griscom's explanation of how he came to lead Roosevelt to his second political defeat since the mighty hunter returned from the wilds of Africa (the first defeat coming when he tried to make the New York Legislature pass a primary bill).

"I did not learn until a short time before the meeting that Vice-President Sherman was to be proposed for temporary chairman. I called up Colonel Roosevelt and told him about it. I told him I was going to present his name. 'All right; go ahead,' Roosevelt said. I then went into the meeting.

"My understanding," continued Mr. Griscom, when urged to go into greater detail, "was that we were to make the move; but we did not expect it until the night before the convention, or, at least, some time immediately before the opening of the convention."

Says He Was Authorized.

Mr. Griscom, when told that organization men had said he had proceeded without the authority of Colonel Roosevelt or of President Taft, expressed the utmost surprise.

"Well, I was authorized to do so," answered Mr. Griscom, after a brief pause.

In another important particular Mr. Griscom's interview differed from that of Colonel Roosevelt. Roosevelt told the reporters only a few minutes before they left him to surround Mr. Griscom that he didn't know if he would go to the State convention as a delegate.

"Will Colonel Roosevelt attend the convention as a delegate?" Mr. Griscom was asked.

"He surely will," was Mr. Griscom's prompt reply.

BARREL DEATH SUSPECT GONE

ROCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 17.—While the police were deliberating whether or not to arerst him, a man closely answering the description of Nicholas Capsalis, wanted at Somersworth for the killing of Maritsa Capsalitsa, the victim of the barrel murder mystery, coolly boarded a train bound for Manchester and escaped. Now the police are confident he was the slayer suspect. They have sent word to the Manchester authorities to arrest him.

The man resembling Capsalis appeared at the station in East Rochester half an hour before the Manchester train left and bought a ticket. The station employes were struck by his resemblance to Capsalis's picture and description and decided to notify the police. A patrolman was summoned and the man pointed out to him. The police looked the suspect over and decided to confer with his superiors before taking the man into custody. He came to Rochester on an electric car, planning to board the Manchester train here if the police officials decided to arrest the suspect. Before a decision was reached the Manchester train was well on its way toward that city.

CIGARMAKERS ARE AFTER COUNTERFEITS

Officials of the Boston Cigarmakers' Union, No. 97, convinced that their label has been counterfeited, as well as the mark of the local custom house, took steps to-day to bring the matter to the attention of the federal authorities.

Four men, apparently Spaniards, are working Boston, selling cigars among business men at $2 per hundred and maintaining that the product has been brought direct from factories in Cuba without the knowledge of customs officials. Some of the boxes were secured by the union men and close inspection showed that the goods were made in New York city, and that both the label of the union and the custom house mark had been counterfeited. Secretary Henry Abrahams of the C. L. U. notified Daniel Harris, a New York representative of the organization.

Gallagher, the patient's condition is more than pleasing to his physicians, who declared at St. Mary's Hospital to-day that it was only a matter of days when the Mayor would be able to leave his bed.

The following bulletin was issued at 8 a. m.:

"The Mayor has passed a very good night. He has slept well, has enjoyed his breakfast and is gaining in strength. Temperature 99 1-5, pulse 70, respiration 16.

INCENDIARY FIRES COTTAGE

District Fire Inspector James J. Grady of the State police to-day made a searching investigation to discover the person who started an incendiary fire which early to-day threatened the Cottage Park section of Winthrop. Two alarms were rung in, bringing out every piece of apparatus in Winthrop. The upper part of the two and a half-story cottage at the corner of Emerson and Loring roads was destroyed, with a loss of about $2,000. The cottage was unoccupied. Hay soaked in kerosene was found in the dwelling.

The fire bells aroused several hundred Winthrop people, who hurried to the scene. A number volunteered their assistance to the department.

The firemen inside the cottage had their suspicions aroused early as to the origin of the fire. The smell of kerosene oil was strong, it was said, and soon hay soaked with oil was found.

Inspector Grady was among the first to arrive. His home is in Winthrop. An examination satisfied him that the fire was set. Later Inspector Grady conducted a rigorous inquiry. The Winthrop police assisted him in his investigation.

TRAFFIC TIED UP.

Car traffic through City square, Charlestown, was tied up for thirty minutes between 9 and 10 o'clock to-day, when a truck loaded with bales of wool broke down while crossing the tracks. The truck was owned by Youlden, Smith & Hopkins.

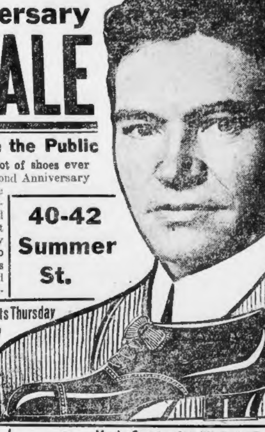
SHEINWALD'S 2nd Anniversary SHOE SALE



Continued to Accommodate the Public

Despite the fact that I had the biggest lot of shoes ever offered to the public at the opening of my Second Anniversary Sale, I was nearly swept off my feet by the rush of buyers last Thursday, Friday and Saturday. My big corps of trained salesmen handled the eager purchasers very satisfactorily, but I had to replenish some departments from my surplus stock many times during the sale—to keep faith with the people, I sold many lines at a big loss. The buying came so fast and steady that I ran out of many sizes and leathers, and to give every friend and customer a fair show I will accommodate the public by continuing my Second Anniversary Sale 3 days more, beginning to-morrow, Thursday, at 8 A. M. All lines, sizes and leathers complete. Come quickly.

Again thanking you,
William Sheinwald

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STOCKS HEAVY, WITH LOSSES

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—While prices did not materially change at the opening of the stock market to-day the undertone of the trade was conspicuously heavy. There was a considerable quantity of stock for sale and it was not long before this was felt in a reactionary movement.

Many of the leading issues recorded material concessions before business had gone very far. St. Paul yielded over one point and Amalgamated Copper lost nearly the same amount, the latter in sympathy with a decline in London.

Canadian Pacific was notable among the heaviest features of the list. It opened at 193, a decline of 1½ points from yesterday's prices. Pennsylvania was off ¾, while smaller losses were recorded in Southern and Union Pacific, Reading, Erie and Atchison.

The curb market opened moderately active and strong.

In London American railroad securities made fractional advances. Union Pacific was the leader in the group, showing an advance of ¾ point.

NEBRASKA CORN CROP VERY SHORT

OMAHA, Aug. 17.—The Nebraska corn crop will be 75,000,000 bushels short of last year's crop if returns of a poll of the State made by grain men and just received are trustworthy. According to this poll, the estimate of yield is 120,000,000 bushels. Last year's crop was 197,000,000 bushels. The average is about 225,000,000.

Two Vital Things Required in Treating Skin Diseases.

In treating and curing Eczema and other well defined skin diseases, two vital things must be done. One is to exclude dust, germs and air from the diseased parts, and the other is to set up the healing process at the same time. The new medical preparation called Cadum accomplishes both these results so effectively that the itching is stopped as soon as it is applied, and the sore parts heal up in a wonderfully short time. Any one with skin trouble can test Cadum by getting a 10-cent box at any drug store, and thus personally realize the power of this new compound, which is just as effective in the cure of pimples, blotches, blackheads, eruptions, acne, herpes, scaly skin, rash, sores, chafing.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Sentiment among the commission houses, while somewhat divided, is in the main of a bullish tenor. It is pointed out that one of the factors lacking in the situation is initiative by important interests heretofore identified with market movements.

$ $ $

State Street, as a rule, does not look for any great degree of activity at this season of the year, but then, things go by contraries in the street, and it is the unexpected that often happens. The market for the next two weeks will doubtless be left to the manipulative tactics of small operators on the floor of the Exchange, which would make more for a purely traders' market than for any sustained upward movement.

$ $ $

State Street is beginning to think that the rise in the market has been too much for a mere rally. Even doubting professionals are getting converted, and, in addition to covering their short contracts, they are taking on lines of long stock.

$ $ $

Except for the elimination of the Pearson syndicate and a few other overburdened speculative pools and persons, everything stands exactly as it did on July 26, except that the market is from ten to eighteen points higher. But the bond market that has been a laggard is beginning to wake up.

$ $ $

Official figures for July show that the balance of trade is turning again in favor of Europe. Last year nearly everybody believed the heavy excess of imports was due to the rushing in of articles ahead of the tariff revision. It is now generally believed that the excess of imports then and now is due to the fact that prices have been boosted in the United States to such an extent that this is the best market in the world for sellers and the poorest for buyers.

$ $ $

Although the market has advanced so sharply since July 26, when the low prices were made for the year, brokers say the short interest has not been eliminated. There are many important traders with decided views on the future of the stock market that are fighting the advance. They have covered several times on the way up and have put out new lines on every sharp advance.

$ $ $

There came by cable from London a report that American copper magnates were considering the organization in England of a $200,000,000 corporation to buy and manage leading copper companies of the United States. Such a capitalization would be absurdly inadequate. At the time the big merger was planned, last December, a capitalization of a billion dollars was deemed necessary. While nobody in authority would confirm the report of yesterday, it was generally believed to be true, chiefly because it is just such a thing as the bewildered copper men would probably attempt. The idea of organizing a corporation in England to evade the laws of the United States will be something refreshing for the political campaign this year. Political secession was tried fifty years ago, with rather indifferent success. Commercial secession will make the insurgents howl with delight.

$ $ $

No change in the Anaconda dividend is expected at the meeting of directors next month. The Amalgamated Copper directors will meet in the following month, and from indications the rate will remain unchanged. It is generally known that the dividends received by the Amalgamated Copper Company on its Anaconda stock are double the amount now paid to Amalgamated shareholders. Therefore, it would be an easy matter for Amalgamated to pay at least 3 per cent. a year on its stock.

$ $ $

Mr. N. J. Miller of Messrs. Miller & Company says: "I look for an improving market. The liquidation has been thorough and the long decline has more than discounted any reaction in general business that we are apt to get. The situation is not perfect, but those who wait until there are no clouds in the sky will find they are buying near the top. I look upon it as one of the safest markets to buy that we have ever had, as stocks are in the hands of the strong financial interests. Union Pacific I believe to be the cheapest of the railways on its earning power."

$ $ $

Allen Arnold & Co. have issued the third of a series of interesting statistical leaflets on leading investment issues. This issue is entitled "Ten Dividend Copers" and contains much interesting information regarding a selected list of copper issues.

The treasurer of Gardner, Mass., has awarded $10,000 4 per cent. sewer scrip, dated July 1, 1910, and payable $1,00 annually 1911-1920 inclusive, to Blodget & Co. at 100.074.

CENTRAL PARK BANANAS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Park Commissioner Stover was presented with a big bunch of bananas a few days ago that were grown in the Central Park Conservatory. Each of the bananas was about six inches long and was finely formed. They were all green when delivered, and when ripe were taken to Bellevue Hospital for distribution among the tuberculosis patients.

PEACE NEAR IN NICARAGUA

The State-wide campaign for direct nominations, begun yesterday, has taken hold. Representative Riley of Malden, who is directing the campaign, to-day received an avalanche of letters acknowledging the receipt of petition blanks and assuring him of enough signatures in each district to have the petitions filed with the Secretary of State before September 8.

M'LEOD ASKS CANDIDATES' STATEMENTS

[Th]e demand from Democrats all over [the] State for a clearing up of the guber[natoria]l nomination tangle has awakened [S]tate committee officers, and Chairman [...] J. Macleod to-day endeavored to se[cure] positive statements from the men who [hav]e been mentioned as candidates as to [wh]ether or not they seek the nomination. [Tho]se who say that they do not seek the [no]mination he asks whether or not they [wo]uld accept the nomination if it was [gi]ven them by the State convention.

Vahey, Foss and Hamlin have already [b]een interviewed by Chairman Macleod. Vahey's answer was that he is in the race till the convention makes its choice. Foss admitted that he wanted the nomination, but hesitates to enter a contest for it. Hamlin is coy. It is understood that he would take the nomination if it didn't come to him in a soiled condition, and if his candidacy wouldn't necessitate the expenditure of much money.

Macleod interviewed several district [lea]ders to-day. Their views were so [mu]ch at variance with one another that [the] conference shed no light on the situa[tion]. The full State committee will meet [nex]t Tuesday afternoon in the headquar[ters] at No. 15 Beacon street. It is [plan]ned to leave the choice of conven[tio]n officers to the executive committee. [Ne]xt Tuesday's meeting will confine it[sel]f to a discussion of campaign plans.

[T]IES FLY UP AND HALT THREE TRAINS

Hundreds of commuters were held up [fo]r a half hour in three trains on the [B]oston & Maine Railroad between Revere [S]treet and Beach street, Revere, to-day at [.] a. m., following an accident which almost derailed the engine of the first train. Several ties were sprung and caught in the cowcatcher. The train came to a sudden stop and jolted the passengers. The brakes were put out of commission and the train was pushed into the city by the two which followed.

If you have sore feet, tired feet, sweaty feet, [la]me feet, tender feet, smelly feet, corns, callouses, bunions, read what happened to Mrs. Crockett of [Ja]ersonville. TIZ DID IT. Mr. Crockett says: [Af]ter the second treatment she [wal]ked downstairs one foot at a [time]. She had not been able to [walk] downstairs before in past five [year]s, except by stepping down on [each] step with one foot at a time. [Thi]s is remarkable. Send five more [bo]xes."

No matter what ails your feet or what under [the] sun you have used without getting relief, just [us]e TIZ. It's different. It acts right off. It [cu]res sore feet to stay cured. SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD LEADER, WHO MAKES SPEECHES IN LYNN

MISS MARY V GLENNON

GIRLS TO MAKE UNION TALKS IN AN AUTOMOBILE

H. P. Martin, a retired grocer of Hyde Park, and reputed to be a millionaire, has placed his $10,000 touring car at the disposal of Miss Mary Glennon, the sixteen-year-old president of the Union of the Girl Textile Workers, for her tour of Lynn to advocate unionizing among the girl buttonhole workers in that city.

Mr. Martin had reach much of the activities of Miss Glennon and when it was announced that she would make the trip to Lynn he entered into the spirit of the girl's efforts and at once offered his machine to make her path easier in her crusade in the Shoe City, which begins Thursday evening.

He has suggested that she make all of her speeches before the operatives, from the car itself. This will be a great aid to the youthful union organizer, giving her an excellent vantage ground and doing away with the necessity of her seeking out a suitable platform from which to deliver her orations. Naturally Miss Glennon accepted the offer with thanks, and is now preparing for her two-day trip in the automobile.

Three Earnest Workers.

Miss Glennon will be accompanied by two women, both earnest workers in the cause of women trade workers. Miss Mabel Gillespie, a Radcliffe College graduate, and secretary of the Boston Women's Trade Union League, who has taken a great interest in this phase of the woman question, will be one of the party, while Mrs. Sara A. Conboy, the business agent of the Textile Workers' Union in this city will complete the party. Mrs. Conboy has won fame through her work in conducting the strike of the Roxbury Carpet Workers some time ago, and bringing it to a conclusion of advantage to the striking operatives. Miss Gillespie during her connection with the Women's Trade Union League of this city has been instrumental in bringing about better conditions for women mill workers.

Two Days' Tour in Lynn.

The party will leave for Lynn on their two days' tour on Thursday afternoon in the big machine, and start their campaign the same evening with a speech at the corner of Essex and Union streets, by Miss Glennon, who will take the leading part in the movement. She will point out the great advantages of unionizing, as being the only method whereby the girl workers or for that matter any mill workers, can hold their own, and ardently advocate the girl buttonhole workers in the big Lynn shoe factories forming a union for their better protection. The trip will last two days, during which time every district in the manufacturing sections of Lynn will be thoroughly covered.

Miss Glennon, though still a girl in years, is an able public speaker and understands her subject thoroughly.

COLUMBUS COUNCIL MAY SETTLE STRIKE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 17.—The street carmens' union to-day offered to submit to the City Council, in reply to its invitation, all differences with the Rail-Light Company for arbitration and abide by a decision of the Council, provided the company would do the same.

GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL MEET.

The Executive Council held its regular weekly session at the State House to-day, but no nominations were submitted by Governor Draper, and only routine business was transacted. The council was in session only a very few minutes, after which the members left for their annual inspection of the State Hospital at Danvers.

LEGISLATORS PROTEST TO STOP FIGHTS

Senator Philip H. Wilbour of Rhode Island, chairman of the Corporation Committee, believes that the most effective way for the National League of Law Makers to stop prize fighting and an exhibition of the pictures taken at prize fights is to pass stringent laws prohibiting them in each state.

In a letter to the BOSTON AMERICAN, written from his home at Little Compton, R. I., Senator Wilbour says:

"I know of no more effective way to stamp out prize fighting than for States to enact stringent statutes to prohibit the same within the borders thereof, with provisions for enforcing the same."

Other letters from law makers who oppose fighting follow:

P. M. Odell, First Selectman, Amherst, N. H.:

I think the abolishment of prize fighting and the pictures of the same can be brought about through the press in a great measure; also by electing the right men to use their influence against the same.

W. R. Allen, Selectman, Dennysville, Me.:

One way to help to put down this evil would be to put some speaker who can interest an audience in any subject before the public and let him make known to the people of this land that there are men who have pledged themselves to take a stand against the public evils and to do everything in their power to put an end to them. I am glad that something is being done in this matter.

Representative W. W. Bean of South Wheelock, Vt.:

Put a law in every State against prize fight pictures being shown in public and then educate the people against them through the newspapers.

Wesley P Hodgman of Marlow, N. H.:

I think there should be State laws prohibiting prize fighting and prize fight pictures, punishable by fine and imprisonment, or a Federal law prohibiting the same, and either strictly enforced.

Ezra P. Brown, South Barrington, N. H.:

Arouse public sentiment against prize fighting and then enact laws that can be enforced.

Frank C. Roby, Coos, N. H.:

I am a believer in the abolishment of this brutal exhibition.

Big Bruins After Berries.

UTICA—Three children of Henry Bohling of Lyons Falls, while picking berries in the fields, suddenly discovered a growling mother bear on one side of them and her cubs on the other side. While the bear growled the children fled in terror. The bruins had evidently been picking berries on their own account, and Mother Bear feared for her little ones. She chased the children for a short distance, but their cries attracted some men, who drove her back.

Frog Bait for Crabs.

NEW YORK—Captain Murphy of the Tottenville police station is looking for the fellow who told him red flannel was good bait for crabs, of which he is very fond. He had a day off, and went down after 'em. On the pier he met his friend, Dave Jones, a lifetime fisherman, and announced that he had the correct bait for crabs. "Red flannel, best in the world," said the captain. "Oh, you go try that on bullfrogs," said the old salt, "but not in salt water."

Trout Nearly Ate Ki-Yi.

SKELPENTON, N. J.—Skip, Wallace Short's Irish terrier, got mistaken for trout bait yesterday. Skip caught too many trout, Tartar fashion. He jumped into a trout hatchery for a swim and got tangled up with a whole school of them when he grabbed one. They pecked him so badly that he won't have to be clipped this Summer.

Feeds Chicken Diamonds.

NEW YORK—Policeman William Meyers of the Canarsie station, who is well blessed with this world's goods, while feeding his hens in the coop lost a $300 diamond ring. He couldn't find it, so the chickens have been losing their heads day after day, he believing that only a personal inspection of their gizzards can he recover the ring. And they are high grade fowls, too.

Rhino Moved After 22 Years.

NEW YORK—Smiles, the double horned, double tonged pink African rhinoceros, rarest of all the animals in Central Park menagerie, has been moved from her cage for the first time in twenty-two years. Park Commissioner Stover decided that her old lodging was not safe enough, the only exit in the event of a fire being an 800 pound iron door, sealed fast by rust. So Smiles had to be moved while workmen built a new fire escape gate.

Auto Smashes Into Bear.

BANGOR—Taking a sharp curve at a speed of thirty miles an hour, a touring car, with a party of New York tourists, crashed into a big black bear in La Grange, thirty miles north of Bangor. The bear fell across the hood of the automobile and was carried several hundred feet. Then it rolled off under the wheels, ditching the machine.

NEW RAILROAD RATE LAW IS IN EFFECT TO-DAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The Mann-Heyburn railroad law goes into full effect to-day. Two sections, one relating to a commission to examine into railroad capitalization and the other into suspension of rates by the commission, pending inquiry into their reasonableness, became effective when the bill was signed. The sweeping nature of the authority given the commission over common carriers by the recent legislation of Congress cannot be comprehended except by careful study of the measure.

The new law works a most important change, in that it puts telegraph and telephone lines under the control of the commission. The commission has not yet taken up the promulgation of regulations under the new law relating to telegraph and telephone lines. It will probably not do this until the first meeting is held next month, at which all members are to be present.

One of the things that may soon be called to the attention of the commission is the war between the National Independent Telephone Association and the American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

Charges Trust.

The National charges that the American and its subsidiaries are trying to establish a gigantic monopoly in violation of the Sherman law. The independent organization strongly urged the movement for Government control of telephone and telegraph companies, in order that the Interstate Commerce Commission might regulate rates and prevent discriminations.

The use of telephone or telegraph franks is stopped by the new law.

The telegraph companies have distributed many franks to public men in the past. Some phases of the new law are vague as to telephone and telegraph companies. For instance, it is not clear just what authority the commission has in respect to requiring publicity from those companies.

Will Fight Regulations.

It is said, however, that the companies will not refuse to comply with any regulations the Commission may make in this respect, since refusal would lead speedily to amendment of the law.

Not only does the new law give the Commission power to suspend rate increases for ten months until their justification can be looked into, but it so broadens the power of the Commission that there are not many phases of railroading and of the business of carriers over which it does not have control.

SENT ELOPEMENT MESSAGE.

DENVER, Aug. 17.—"Eloped Saturday, married here Sunday. Eloped because wife's parents objected," was the surprising message received by Harry Mulnix, formerly State Treasurer, from his son Robert at Kansas City. The bride was Miss Nevelia Davis Still of New York city, an heiress in her own right.

MADE WIFE SLEEP IN BARN.

SPRINGFIELD, N. J., Aug. 17.—Rudolph Roeder is locked up at the county jail in Elizabeth in default of $300 bail for refusing to allow his wife to sleep in her own home. For the past week, according to the testimony of the woman, she has been compelled to sleep in the barn and was badly bitten by mosquitoes.

300-POUND WIFE IS CRUEL.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—On the grounds that while she is only five feet two inches in height and weighs more than three hundred pounds, Mrs. Domenico Andrini appealed to the Judge not to annoy her by forcing her attendance at court to answer the suit of her husband. "Besides," she says, "my husband was only peevish and did not realize what he was doing when he brought the action for divorce." Andrini says his weighty wife claims as hers all the $75 a week he earns, and gets it from him by walloping him with a piece of garden hose.

OH, THOSE HOBBLE SKIRTS!

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 17.—The latest thing in accidents has arrived. Yes, it was in a hobble skirt. It was the first skirt of the kind in Milwaukee. Miss Winifred Lawrence was the victim. Even though a puddle of mud confronts the wearer long steps are highly inconsistent with this recent device of Dame Fashion, but Miss Lawrence tried it. As Patrolman Shinners hastened gallantly to the rescue he noted a look of regret on Miss Lawrence's face. The new dress was ruined and Miss Lawrence's ankle was sprained.

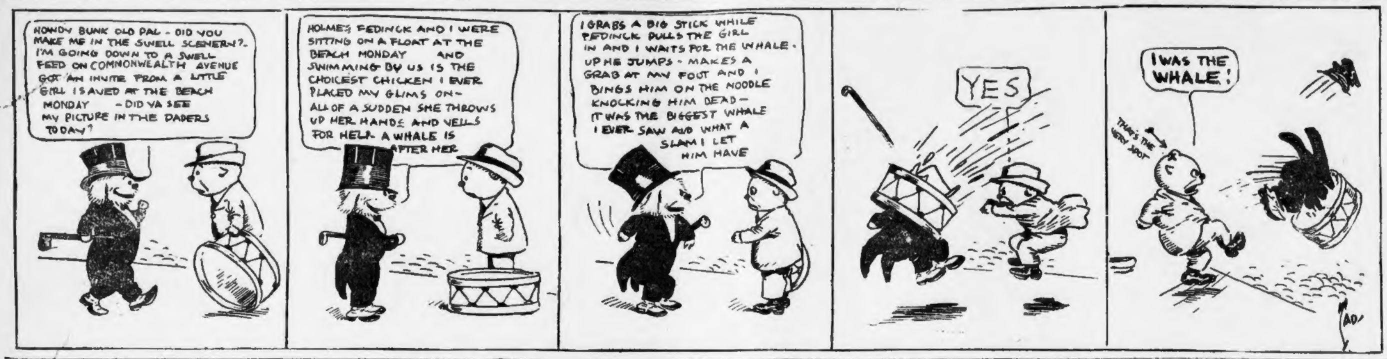
BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

Bunk Was a Whale All Right, When He Got Wise — By Tad



WHO DID WIN OUT ON THAT LORD DEAL?

Who DID get the better of that Red Sox-White Sox baseball deal?

Since the BOSTON AMERICAN started its contest for $100 to be given in prizes for the best letters on the subject, the fans have gone wild, each discussing in his own way the merits of the exchange of Lord and McConnell for Purtell and Smith from Chicago.

They—the fans—are aroused everywhere. From Maine to Connecticut the much mooted problem is, who really got the best end of it? Bushels of letters received by the BOSTON AMERICAN prove that not only in Boston but in every New England centre, the fans are keeping close tabs on the Red Sox, and that no deal in years has awakened the comment the recent release of McConnell and Lord did.

To-day, the mail beat all records. The baseball contest editor was fairly swamped amid hundreds of letters. A few bushel measures wouldn't have counted as a picayune. The fans put it all over him, even to the home run. They batted him into left field and then into right, and simply splurged themselves in good, terse English, telling what they thought of the Red Sox deal.

You can find the fans on all sides of the fence, but there is nary a straddler. They are outspoken one way or the other. The majority apparently thinks Boston got the worse end of the bargain, but there are some who believe Purtell and Smith will more than make up for the loss of Lord and McConnell.

Here are a few of the letters:

UNEVENLY BALANCED TRADE.

Baseball Contest Editor, The Boston American, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir—I am a faithful baseball fan, and have followed the game and trades of all the different teams, especially in the American League, and I can't recall a baseball deal that was so unevenly balanced as this one between the Boston American and Chicago American teams.

I think that Lord alone is equally worth Purtell and Smith, and McConnell, one of the fastest infielders in the game, must have been the object of some big money deal. I also think that the absence of these two men from the Boston team will slow the fast stride of the Red Sox in their race for the pennant.

Smith, an old timer and now a cripple, (in the words of the BOSTON AMERICAN), will never come back, and I myself do not consider Purtell a first-class third baseman. Consequently public sentiment is against Taylor and this deal, and it will mean a great decrease at the Red Sox games.

Portland, Me., Aug. 13, 1910.

Baseball Contest Editor, Boston American:

Dear Sir—In answer to "Who got the best of the deal" wherein Harry Lord and Ambrose McConnell of Boston were traded for Frank Smith and George Purtell of Chicago, I will say that taking into consideration the quality of ball each man has played it appears that Chicago has got the best of the trade. Now I do not write in this mind because Harry Lord is a native of this city, but for the following reasons:

First, I base my ideas upon the information gained through the columns of your valuable paper.

Second, I note that Chicago is now able to gain the services of the best third baseman in the country, and of a second baseman superior to the man that now fills that position. Boston strengthens only one department, that of pitching. Purtell will do well to cover third base as well as it has been taken care of by Engle. What he has done so far does not lead any one to believe his work is of higher standard than Engle's. It is seen then that no improvement is to be made in that department.

Yours truly,
A. J. GRENIER.

The sensation of the year in baseball world was the exchange of the two fast, clever men of the Boston American team, Captain Harry Lord and Ambrose McConnell, for the brilliant players of the Chicago Americans, Pitcher Frank Smith and Third Baseman George Purtell.

The question as to which team got the better of the trade is being discussed on all sides, and there is much variance of opinion. To the persons who write the best letters on this question in 200 words or less the Boston American will award the following cash prizes:

FIRST PRIZE, $25.
SECOND PRIZE, $15.

ROMARS TO BATTLE WITH NOTRE DAMES

There will be some tall doings at the Old South End grounds next Saturday afternoon, when the crack Romars and the Notre Dames clash in the first game of the series for the championship of Roxbury.

These two teams are evenly matched, and the outcome of the series is arousing much interest in the burg. The Romars have defeated some of the best amateurs in the State, the Roger Wolcotts having been among their list of victims, and they have met with but few set-backs.

Johnny Pearie, the former High School of Commerce pitcher, will do the twirling for the Romars, and Jesseau will be on the receiving end, while Broderick and Reddington will possibly be the batteries for the Notre Dames.

ACTING MAYOR OF NEW YORK HALTS KAUFMAN BATTLE

The Dope Had the Reverse English Effect, and Boob Cashed — By Peter

MAYOR MITCHELL ENDS BOXING IN NEW YORK

By TAD.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The lid is on. Acting Mayor John Purroy Mitchell has put Gotham in the same class pugilistically as that into which California was forced by Governor Gillette, when he discovered that the Johnson-Jeffries fight was a bold, bad affair.

Billy Gibson, manager of the Fairmont A. C., where Al Kaufman and Bill Lang were to have met for ten rounds last night, but were prevented by the police acting under Mitchell's orders, to-day declared that he would carry the matter to the courts to determine whether such bouts are violations of the law.

"No purse was offered and no decision was to be given," said Gibson to-day, "and I don't see how any law could be broken by such a boxing exhibition."

The match will go on, however. That is the assurance of the managers of both the California blacksmith and the Antipodean broncho whom he says he will shoe. They will probably meet in Philadelphia. Hugh McIntosh, backer of Lang and Billy Delaney, who is handling Kaufman to-day, began dickering for a chance in the Quaker City.

"I'll meet him any place," said Kaufman to-day. Lang said the same. So it's largely a question of getting an arena.

Some of the men's trainers suggested that a delay would be necessary because of the time the fighters have been in training. Kaufman was in shape to meet Langford last week at Philadelphia and Lang was in trim several days ago for the match with Ketchell, which was postponed a week and then called off.

Hundreds of the spectatirs who saw four preliminaries last night and then filed out when the situation was explained to them, claimed their money to-day as the result of Gibson's promise to refund the price to all the $4, $5 and $10 members of the club. Between $12,000 and $15,000 was paid back.

"It's only fair to the public," said Gibson. One of those who did not claim the money was Prince Franz Joseph Michael Karl Maria Evariste Quirinis Ottaker of Bavaria, brother of the Queen of Belgium and heir to the Bavarian throne, who arrived from Europe yesterday. He paid $10 to sit between a negro and a flashy sport on the bleachers.,

ARMORY A. A. CARD FOR NEXT TUESDAY

The Armory A. A. has announced the complete program for the opening show next Tuesday evening. The bouts will be as follows: Harry Lewis, claimant of the welterweight title, vs. Leo Houck of Lancaster, Pa., in the main bout of six rounds; three six-round bouts, between Joe White of South Boston and Young Jasper of the North End; A. J. Duffy of Jamaica Plain, amteur champion of New England, and Tom Foley of South Boston, and George Alger of Cambridge and Ralph Tickle of Pawtucket. The first preliminary bout will start at 8.15 p. m.

Before and After the Game

By DYKE CLARK.

Don't often see a pitcher start one game and get knocked out of the box the first inning. Start the next game and win it out with ease, but that's what Sammie Frock did up at the South End Grounds yesterday when the Doves split even with the St. Louis Cardinals in the double-header on the bill. Frock must have felt that it was up to him to make good after being the cause of losing the opening contest and gave one of his best exhibitions. It might have been a double win for the Doves if the Cards hadn't landed on Frock in that one inning and pushed in the five runs, which was a lump of tallies too big to overcome.

Even with a lead of five runs to start with, the Cardinals had all they could do to hold the Doves from getting in front. They got going in the seventh inning and began to find Johnny Lush in fine style. After making three runs and with two on the bases, little Miller Huggins robbed Beck of a base hit on its way to right field that would have brought in the two tallies and lead in the Doves' favor. So a good part of that victory for the Bresnahan bunch can be awarded to the sawed-off second baseman, who always makes trouble for the other team.

For in-and-out pitchers the Doves certainly have a choice selection. There was Buster Brown, who relieved Frock after the Cards had pulled over five runs and were just in the mood to pile up sume more scores, but Buster had them bufaloed after he wound up and they didn't get a man over the pan again till towards the end of the game, when a pinch hitter went in to take Brown's place and Chick Evans relieved Buster in the box.

The chilly wave was tough on the pitchers all round, as they were hit freely and three home runs were counted in the double session. Bill Sweeney put the ball over the fence in the first game, but the bases were clear at the time. Ray Miller connected for a pair of shoes in the second game, but again there was nobody on the sacks. Konetchy, the Pole, slipped one over in the ninth inning in the last game, but he was the first up and there were visions of a batting rally and tying up of the score, but Frock tightened up and got out of it in good shape.

There were few spectacular plays in eighteen innings of the pastime, but the star bit of fielding was done by Colins in the second game, when he ran toward the third base bleachers and glued to Huggins's short fly. He was running full tilt at the fence, but did not hesitate and froze to the ball.

"Pitchers who can put the pill over the plate are the secret of baseball success," says Roger Bresnahan.

"They are the fellows who win the games. Sometimes I wish that I had kept on as a pitcher. If I had stayed in that department I would have learned a lot of things by this time. It is no cinch that I will not resume it, either."

In reply to the assertion of a Cincinnati baseball editor that "baseball is an attractive betting proposition," Mr. Mulford retorts:

"Of course baseball is an attractive betting proposition. So is horse racing, and look what has been done to that game all over this land. It was not racing itself that the State legislators opposed, but the 'attractive betting features,' without which the turf can only live in a hand-to-mouth sort of a way. If the small percentage of sportively inclined, however, are encouraged to make prominent the 'attractive betting angles' of baseball, look out for squalls."

GIRL BREAKS RECORD FOR THROWING BALL

IOWA CITY, Ia., Aug. 17.—Ada Paintin, aged fifteen, threw a league baseball 187 feet at a game here Sunday in striving to break the record, alleged to be a world mark set by Byrtle McCarrell of Oak Park, Ill., in July, when 180 feet was covered.

JIMMY MORAN TO RACE KRAMER AT REVERE TRACK

The management of the Revere cycle track has arranged one of the best cards for Saturday night that has been seen upon a local track for many moons. With a 30-mile motor-paced race with such stars as Elmer Collins, George Wiley and Fred Hill chasing the motors, the bike fans are in for a rare evening of sport.

The chief event of the evening, however, is the match race between Frank L. Kramer, the American sprint champion for the past nine years, and Jimmy Moran, the Chelsea milkman, to decide who shall be hailed as the premier all-around champion of America. Kramer was a spectator at last Saturday's races, when Moran defeated Alf Goulett of Australia in straight heats. After the race Moran challenged the champion to meet him for the title of all-around champion. Kramer accepted the offer and without delay the two flyers agred to race three heats, one one-mile sprint, five-mile motor-paced, and an unlimited pursuit race.

There will be gay doings when the cream of the Class B professional riders gather to fight for the big money purses hung up by the management.

DOVES BATTLE FAREWELL GAME

ST. LOUIS.	BOSTON.
Huggins, 2b.	Collins, l.f.
Ellis, l.f.	Herzog, 3b.
Koney, 1b.	Sharpe, 1b.
Phelps, c.	Miller, r.f.
Evans, r.f.	Abby, s.s.
Mowrey, 3b.	Beck, c.f.
Oakes, c.f.	Rariden, c.
Houser, s.s.	Shean, 2b.
Harmon, p.	Mattern, p.

The Doves will be the only Boston team to play to-day and will meet the Cardinals in the farewell game of the series. The Red Sox are resting in their private car on the way home from St. Louis and will tomorrow open a series with Detroit.

Manager Lake is anxious to win to-day's contest with St. Louis, and all the players are confident that the team has struck its real playing gait, and from now on will make trouble for all the teams in the league.

Lake will have all his slab artists at work before the game, but it is likely that he will select Mattern to work, as the latter has been groomed for the contest and is anxious to take the number of Bresnahan's crew. Harmon, who has won one game from the Doves during the series, will probably pitch for his team.

NEW BASEBALL LINE COVERING COSTS $1,000

The diamond at the Polo Grounds, New York, made such a tremendous hit with Manager Frank Chance of the Cubs that he ordered two car loads of the black loam that forms the surface of it sent to the West Side Park in Chicago.

It's expensive, too, this loam, for it costs $500 a car. That didn't interest the Peerless Leader, however. According to the telegram he just ordered the dirt without asking any questions.

The loam, earth, or whatever it is, will be spread over the base lines and that part of the diamond which is not sodded, if the manager has his way.

Down in New York they are discussing the proposition of having the Western teams come East and the Eastern teams go West four times instead of three during the season. It seems that the Eastern teams are casting covetous eyes on the Sunday dates in the West and would like to break in for more. Fewer games would be played on each trip. The Eastern magnates feel that more people would go to the games if the series was for three games instead of four. The only additional expense would be the railroad fare for one trip, for the hotel bills would be just the same, since the men would spend the same number of days in the hotel.

STOP BETTING CUT RACE MEET

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 16.—Governor Harmon's crusade against gambling and pool selling at race meets has resulted in the calling off of three of the four days of racing which was scheduled to start at Rockport. Instead of a program of harness events Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday there will be racing only on Wednesday, when two $1,000 stake events will be run off.

Rockport is on the Lake Eerie light harness circuit. One other Ohio city on the circuit is Akron, where races are scheduled for August 23, 24, 25 and 26. Horsemen fear that the Governor's opposition to bookmaking will seriously cripple that meeting and perhaps result in the calling off of all but the stake events scheduled for the meet.

Promoters of the meeting at Rockport took action following an announcement from Mayor C. W. Nichols that he would not allow pool selling at the Rockport races under insthuctions from the Governor, and the announcement from Sheriff Hirstius of Cuyahoga county that unless the Mayor stopped the gambling he would take a hand.

HORSES TO START IN NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 17.—"The Sport of Kings" is to come back again, for prominent local merchants have guaranteed a fund sufficient to provide an attractive list of races for the running horses for a season of thirty days' Winter racing. The meeting here will be conducted strictly in accordance with the Locke anti-race betting law.

The races will serve as a test as to whether racing can be conducted here without open betting. The merchants' fund is large enough to meet the purses, and the gate receipts are expected to meet the running expenses outside the purses.

WHITNEY HORSE WINS.

STOCKTON, England, Aug. 17.—The trial All-Aged Selling Plate of 20 sovereigns for two-year-olds and up, distance five furlongs, was won to-day by H. P. Whitney's Belle of Troy filly. The Cyanean filly was second and Coronal third. There were seven starters.

HUB MAN STAR IN TWO MATCHES

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Spectators crowded the Washington Park range to-day to witness the second round of all the competitors in the thirty-second annual tournament of the National Archery Association. Fifty men and women devotees of the bow and arrow were engaged in the contests.

Good scores were made despite a high wind which hindered the arrow's flight yesterday. H. B. Richardson of Boston, was the star of the day. In the double American round he led the entire field with a total score of 526, while in the afternoon York round he again showed the way with 545. Honors in the women's rounds were divided between Mrs. J. R. Sullivan and Mrs. L. Witmer, both of Chicago. Mrs. Sullivan led the National round with 287, while Mrs. Witmer topped her rivals in the Columbia round with 358.

SELLERS SIGNS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—In President Lynch's latest National League bulletin the contract of Oliver Sellers with Boston for 1910 and 1911 is announced. Boston has granted R. N. Good leave of absence until next season.

Mirandy on a Wife as a Trade Mark — By Dorothy Dix

"DE longer I lives an' de mo' I sees," said Mirandy, "de funnier I thinks dat men is. Yassum, dere ain't no odder nation of people dat has got as many curis peculiarities as men is—an' mo' especially married men.

"An' de funniest part of hit all is dat when I wants to tell what sort of a man a married man is, I don't look at him at all. I jest looks at his wife, for she's de sign dat he hangs out to show folks what sort of a creeter he is, an' how he is gittin' along in de world.

"Ef he is one of dese heah braggy, pompous sort of fellows what wants folks to think he's makin' lots of money an' is mighty smart, an' is gittin' along fine, he buys his wife silk dresses, an' dese heah hobble skirts, an' long fedders for her hat, an' trots her around whar folks can see her. He knows people is gwine to say:

"For heaven's sake, jest look at dat Mrs. Jerusha Jones, an' de clothes she's got! My Lind, I wonder whar she gets 'em; an' while I ain't one of dem what would fling asparagus on a lady's charácter all I got to say is dat I hope she gits 'em honest.

De prosperous, happy wife is a sure sign of prosperity an' happiness in de husband she happens to have.

De Neigbors Remark

"An' den somebody else pipes up an' says, 'I tell you dat Brer Jerusha Jones is one of dese hear Napoleons of finance, an' de way dat man can collar a dollar beats Bobtail. Jest look at de way his wife dresses! Why, he must be a millionaire, for my wife says dat hit costs money jest to look at one of dem weepin' willows dat she's got on her bonnet.'

"Dat's de true word," chimes in somebody else. "When hit comes to makin' money dat man must be a sooner, an' I only wisht dat I had de price of dem gold earbobs his wife has got on. Ef I did I wouldn't have so many corns on my feet from hustlin' around trying to dodge de rent collector.

"Dat's de way de talk goes, an' ev'eybody figgers hit out dat Jerusha Jones is a-gittin' so rich, becaze his wife is diked out so fine, dat dey wants to lend him money an' asks his advice, an' looks up to him lak he was ole man Solomon hisself. His wife is de sign of his prosperity, dat Jerusha has done hung out, an' den when Jerusha busts an' ev'eybody loses de money, dey all says dat he was ruined by de extravagance of his wife, while maybe Mrs. Jerusha is a meek little woman what didn't care about dem styly things at all, an' would rather stayed at home an' wo' a Mother Hubbard and been comforable.

De Wife De Sign-Board

"But all de same, de wife is de sign-board of de husband, an' when we sees a woman what has got on her last year's bonnet, an' a dress dat has been turned fo' times, we heaves a sigh, an' says to ourselfs dat we'se mighty sorry to see dat Brer Joshua ain't a-gittin' along well, an' dat we had better make him pay cash for de fo' bits worth of sugar, or de pint of molasses, dat he comes to buy.

"An' when you wants to find out whedder a man is good, an' kind, an' generous, you don't look at de man hisself, becaze ev'ey man away from home is a pin-headed angel, an' dat mild spoken dat butter wouldn't melt in his mouf.

"Naw'm, you passes up de man, an' takes a squint at his wife, an' ef she looks happy an' contented, an' well treated, an' begins ev'ey sentence wid 'my ole man says,' den you can pin yo' faith to dat man.

"He's all wool, an' a yard wide, an' won't shrink in de washin', an' you ain't goin' to make no 'mistake ef you trusts him. He done writ his price tag an' hung hit around his wife's neck.

"But when you meets up wid a woman what looks kinder pinched, an' drawed, an' she jumps when you speak to her sudden, an' whose talk sorter tastes lak hit had been pickled in vinegar, you pass up dat woman's husband. She's de sign dat he's done nailed up dat says dat he's mean, an' bossy, an' a knocker, an' dat he'll take in ev'eybody dat has dealin's wid him, an' sell 'em out.

While de woman dat looks kinder pinched an' jumps when you speak to her sudden has a husband that should be avoided.

"Yassum, you can always tell what a man is by lookin' at his wife, an' dat's what I was a-sayin' to my ole man, Ike, de odder night.

"'Well,' says Ike, 'ef dat's so, when folks takes a look at you an' sizes up yo' figger dey must feel lak givin' me a medal for a good feeder.'

"'Dat's right,' spons I, for I believes in softsoapin' a man, even ef he is yo' husband, 'an' dat's de reason dat I always tries to set up cheerfully in company, an' boost matermony, when de subject comes up, so as to show dat I didn't draw de booby prize. But,' I goes on drawin' a sigh, 'I'se afeared dat I ain't been doin' my duty to you as a wife lately, an' hit lays heavy on my conscience.'

"For heaven sake, woman, what has you been up to?" 'sclaims Ike, "ef dat bandy-legged, bald-headed, goggle-mouthed onery preacher, what's been a-hangin' around here an' eatin' yo' chicken dinners is done been a-castin' sheep's eyes at you, I'll——'

"'Don't you worry about dat little shrimp,' says I, 'hit ain't him. Here's clothes. I'se been a-troubled in my mind becaze I didn't have none of dese heah new fangled frocks what's a tied in at de feet, nor one of dese heah hats what looks lak a jint of a stove pipe, wid a rose pinned on hit, an' I'se been afraid dat hit would hurt yo' credit.'

Just a Mere Formula.

"'Hit would hurt my pocket wuss if you had 'em,' says Ike.

"'No,' I goes on. 'I knows dat folks is gwine to judge you by de way I dresses, an' whilst my mind is set on higher things dan dem foolish fashions, I feels dat hit's my duty not to let de worl' find out dat my husband is a po', no account man what can't dress his wife styly.'

"'Huh,' grunts Ike.

"'Ev'eybody will hate you by de way I looks,' says I, 'for a wife is de sign board dat tels how a husband is gitin' on, an' I can't bear dat folks should misjudge you, an' not know how peart you is about makin' money.'

"'Maybe you had better git 'em,' says Ike.

"But I'd already got 'em."

Man's Heart Breaks

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

OUT in Chicago a man died suddenly of heart disease. Physicians say that he died of a broken heart, because the girl he loved married another man.

She even heaped up the agony by inviting the rejected one to be best man at the wedding.

He told her, at the wedding, that she might never see him again. And then he went home and died.

In all probability, some latent heart trouble, accentuated by his mental depression, caused his death.

Indirectly, I suppose, it might be said that he died of a broken heart, but if there had been no weakness there it is safe to say that he would have recovered and, in time, married some other girl.

Men Do Not Die That Way

Women die of heartbreak, but men do not, for the reason that they have great outside interests in life that occupy their minds more than sentiment.

The average woman, though she may be constantly busy of hand, has much time for thought. Consequently, when she loses a loved one, her mind dwells incessantly on her trouble.

There is not a minute of her waking hours when the dear voice is not echoing in her ears, the dear face present to her mental eye.

Do you know the exquisite poem called "Absent"? It must have been written by a woman who knew the meaning of the word "heartbroken." Here it is:

Sometimes, between long shadows on the grass,
The little truant waves of sunlight pass;
My eyes grow dim with memories, the while,
Thinking I see thee smile.
And sometimes in the twilight gloom, apart,
The tall trees whisper: whisper heart to heart.
From glad lips, the eager answers fall,
Thinking I hear thee call.

The strongest love of a man's life is his career. The strongest love in a woman's life is for the man she loves.

Many women have given up careers for love, but who ever heard of a man doing so?

When a man is wooing a woman he is ready to promise anything on earth.

He is also ready to sacrifice everybody on earth but himself.

He will fight for her—in jealousy he will kill for her—but he will not die for her.

He will love her well and truly all the days of his life; will work for her and give her unselfish devotion; but his heart will never break for her.

The average man abjures woman's society forever when the girl of his heart refuses him.

Then, being in a woeful and lonely frame of mind, he goes out and falls in love with the first girl who tries to console him.

Enough Sad-hearted Women

I am glad that men do not die of broken hearts, for there are enough sad-hearted women in the world without man's swelling the list.

Woman gives way to grief more than man, for man must work, whereas woman has time to weep.

A man may lose the life-partner who is dear to him beyond measure, but the very next day he must take up the burden of his work and give his whole mind to it. For hours his mind must be filled with business details, to the exclusion of all else.

It is not because man is not capable of great love that he does not die of heart break, but simply that he has not time; nor is it his way.

With heart ache, both men and women are well acquainted; but there is a wide difference between the two.

Dainty Date Dishes

THE candy, the over-sweetened dish of fruit or raw sugar in any form cause half the Summer troubles with children. But sugar in some form, since it is a storehouse of energy, is a natural craving among adults and children alike.

In the date, nature provides sugar in a concentrated and easily digested form. When combined with nuts, which furnish protein, dates make a perfect Summer food.

DATE BREAD RECIPE.

Date bread is delicious hot or cold. Make sponge with three cups of flour sifted with teaspoon of salt, one-half cake of yeast dissolved in lukewarm water, and one quart of water also lukewarm. Set in warm place to rise, then add one-half cup of molasses, one-half cup of sugar, and flour to make soft dough, working in two heaping cups of chopped dates, knead and set to rise until it has nearly doubled its bulk. Shape into loaves, and when light, bake forty-five minutes.

MAKING DATE BUNS.

To make date buns, roll out the bread dough instead of making it into loaves. Spread it with butter and more chopped dates, roll up like a jelly roll, cut in slices one-half inch thick, and bake in a well-buttered pan.

RICH DATE DESSERT.

Date and apple pie makes a rich dessert suitable for serving after a simple, not heavy, dinner. Line a deep tin with good pastry crust, and fill with mixture of chopped dates and apples. Sprinkle with cinnamon and one-fourth cup of sugar, put on cover of crust and bake thirty minutes.

DATE DUFF.

Date duff should be served as soon as taken from oven. Stone one cup of dates and stew until tender. Rub through colander and mix with one cup of sugar sifted with one teaspoon of cream of tartar. Beat whites of five eggs and the yolks of two, mix and add pinch of salt. Add date pulp gradually, turn into buttered pudding dish cover with chopped nuts and bake fifteen minutes. Serve with or without whipped cream.

DATE JAM.

Date jam is wholesome served in place of breakfast marmalade. Simmer one pound of stoned dates in one quart of water eight minutes; add one-half pound of sugar, teaspoon of butter and one of lemon juice. Cook until sirup is thick and seal when cold in stone jars.

DATE SANDWICHES.

For sandwiches dates combine well with either chopped nut meats or cottage cheese, figs, raisins or preserved ginger. Use whole wheat bread in preference to white, and spread with thick sweet cream or soft butter.

JEWELED LACES.

THE very newest thing in jewelry is the reproduction of old and priceless laces in tiny pearls and diamonds mounted upon gun metal, platinum or diamond net. The exact pattern of the lace is copied, and the whole is formed into a jabot or a lace fall for the collar. Sometimes there is a bow above, composed of some colored stones—emeralds or amethysts or rubies—set in solid.

This new and wonderful work has revolutionized the art of the jeweler, since the workmanship has become quite as valuable as the stones themselves. These laces of jewels are, of course, ruinously expensive, but they are such marvels of beauty that a woman might well dispense with all other ornaments for the sake of possessing one of them.

LITTLE LOVE STORIES

By MABEL HERBERT URNER.

No. 3.—An Adventure

IT was raining heavily. The village streets were dark except where the lamps lit up the wet pavement and muddy crossings. She held the umbrella low over her face and was careful to go by the side streets lest she meet some one she knew.

She was positive no one had seen her start, and she would be back before they missed her. She had dressed hurriedly, but she felt that her disguise was complete—an old black shawl and bonnet, a thick veil and a dilapidated umbrella.

She was glad that it was raining; he would be more apt to be at home. His house was several blocks away, but she could see its roof from her window. All the long, rainy afternoon she had been looking out at it, wondering if he were there and what he was doing.

And then had come the impulse to go to his house, disguised, to see him for a moment as he would seem to some one else. It would be foolish and reckless, she knew, but she was in the mood for an adventure, and it would at least be that.

Planning an Adventure

She would make up a little speech about being a stranger out of work and sadly in need of food. To avoid the servants she would go around the veranda to the library door—he would answer that himself. He would give her some change, she would thank him and slip away into the darkness. But in the meantime the door would be open and she would see in the library—the room where he wrote and studied—the room that was characteristic of him.

She was almost there now. Her heart beat fast. If he should recognize her? He would be very angry, and she could never make him understand. For almost a year they had been engaged, but somehow he never understood her moods, her impulses, her love of adventure. But he would not recognize her. She would be very careful. She would not go in, but only stand at the door.

The next house was his. Now she was at the gate. There was a light in the library. It shone out through the slats of the shutters and lay in bright streaks on the wet grass.

As she went up the steps her petticoats rustled softly. She had forgotten to change them. The rustle of silk would not be consistent with the pitiful tale of poverty. But she would not turn back now, the spirit of adventure ran high within her. She would hold her skirt closely so there would be no silken sound.

Drawing the veil farther over her face, she crossed over to the library door and knocked. But it was such a timid little knock—no one could have heard it. Oh, her heart beat so! She knocked again, louder this time. Then came the sound of steps!

And now her courage failed. She was overwhelmed with a sudden rush of fear, a wild desire to get away before he saw her. But the door opened—he was before her. She forgot her carefully-prepared speech, tried to say something, but could not.

"Ah—good evening," his voice was politely curious.

"I—I am very tired and—hungry," she stammered. "Will you—could you help me—or give me something?"

He was loking at her keenly. "You may come in; I will see what can be done."

She found herself in the library. She ought not to be there—she had not intended to enter. She was trembling violently.

There was her picture in a leather frame on his desk and beside it an art calendar she had given him. How strange they looked to her now.

"Wait here and I will call the housekeeper. You seem ill, she will know what to do."

"Oh, no—no; please don't call any one! I'm not ill—I must go now! I"—— She turned hurriedly, her hand was on the door.

After the Discovery

He caught the flash of jewels—the rings—the band——

"Katherine!"

With a startled cry she buried her face in her hands. The silence that followed was tense. It seemed hours that she stood there, a sickening fear in her heart. Why did he not speak? What did his silence mean? Then she sank into a couch near by, hid her face in the pillows and burst into hysterical tears.

Her diamond rings revealed her to him despite the disguise.

Surely he would come to her now. He would kneel by the couch, take her in his arms and soothe and comfort her. Even now she felt a thrill of triumph at the thought of her power over him. In spite of her discomfort there was something dramatic in the situation that appealed to her.

He was coming toward her—her heart gave a glad bound. But no—he had passed on to the door.

"I will order the carriage. You can't walk back in the rain." His voice sounded strained and unnatural. The door closed and she was alone.

She sat up, pushed the hair from her face and tried to think. She felt dizzy and bewildered. He had not made the slightest effort to comfort her, or even to speak to her. Her face grew crimson at the thought. What right had he to treat her with silent contempt? What had she done? It was only a foolish adventure. Why should he take it so seriously?

Her rings! Oh! how could she have forgotten them? If she had only taken them off! Or, if she had kept her courage, laughed when he recognized her and treated it all as a clever joke! But she had become nervous, frightened, had broken down, and now—oh, the humiliation of it all!

A small bronze idol on the mantel seemed leering at her with its hideous, mocking leer. The glass eyes in the moose's head over the door looked down with a horrible glare. Even the gaping mouth of the tiger skin at her feet seemed to be grinning fiercely, maliciously.

He Takes Her Home

There was a sound of wheels on the gravel outside. The door opened, he carried his overcoat and hat. He helped her to the carriage in silence. His face was stern and cold. The driver spoke to the horses; the wheels grated against the curbstone, and they were whirling through the dimly-lighted village streets.

She leaned her hot cheek against the cool glass of the carriage window and waited. He must speak to her soon; he would not ride the whole way in silence. He was gazing out at the splashing rain and wet cobblestones.

At length the silence became unendurable. She could not bear it. The nervous strain had been too great. She felt that she must cry or scream or laugh—she didn't care which.

Suddenly she burst into a shrill, uncontrollable peal of laughter. He turned to her in alarm.

"Oh, it is all so ludicrous—so very ludicrous! Can't you see how—how funny it is?" She hardly knew what she was saying, but something urged her on. "Don't you—don't you think it is very—funny?"

"No; I do not." His voice was very low.

"No? Don't you? Oh, but it is. But of course you don't see it. You only think it improper—unmaidenly, that I should come there at such an hour, in such a disguise. Well, why shouldn't I? It has been a dreary, monotonous day. I longed for something exciting—an adventure! And besides I was curious to see your home, the place where you live, the things that surround you daily. It is all so unfair. A man calls on a woman when he chooses, sees her home life, her surroundings, her family and judges her accordingly. Why should she not be allowed a like privilege? No, I am not sorry that I came. I am glad—do you hear—I am glad! I wanted an adventure—and it was certainly that. And it was comical—so very comical.

She laughed again, louder than before.

"Your expression when you recognized me was so droll. And your silence is so droll. Oh it is all so very funny—so——"

"You are talking very loud. The driver will hear you."

Instantly she was silent. She felt as if he had struck her. The hot blood rushed to her face. For the rest of the way she was conscious of nothing but a great burning humiliation.

The carriage drew up with a jerk. He helped her out and bade her a formal good-night.

In her own room she knelt by the open window. There was the faint sound of a carriage rapidly receding in the distance. The rain blew unheeded in her face. Crying? No, she could not cry. She was only wondering if there would be any to-morrow and what it would be like.

"The Play's the Thing"

THERE'S a whole lot of talk about things scientific;
There's a war on to kill the bookworm soporific;
There's the militant woman, the boldest thing yet,
With her battle cry ringing, "Suf-Suffragette."
But if you would add to the news of the day,
Discover the man who's not writing a play.
There are wonders in physics, marvels sidereal;
Breakfast foods cooked by a process ethereal;
There's the freakified gown Diana would blush at;
There's the watch on the ankle, the Chanteclér hat;
But if you aspire to real laurels, oh, pray
Discover the man who's not writing a play.
Do not be discouraged, but think of Diogenes,
Galileo, Newton, Confucius, Demosthenes;
Be sparing of pleasure, eat little, be strenuous,
Polite, never tiring, alert and ingenuous,
And it may be your luck, in dying, to say
"I discovered the man who ne'er wrote a play."

Dress and Height

THERE is a woman seen in the cars daily who has never learned that dress and appearance are at all correlated. She is a short, stout little body, and by the time she has completed her toilet she looks like a walking balloon. Her coats are always puffed as to sleeve and padded as to shoulder; her shirtwaists blouse; she wears wide bows at her neck and on her hat; her shoes have broad, round points, and her light gloves make her hands look larger.

It takes more than a regard for the direction in which a stripe runs to overcome a tendency to undue length or shortness. My friend's costume would be ideal for the animated beanpole. But she herself should dress severely, in simple, straight lines; her hats should be high, with erect plume or ribbon, her gloves should be dark, her shoes pointed, her clothing in general tight fitting.

And if only all women abnormal in either direction as to height or weight would observe the same principle!

WE might as well our kicking drop
And end our fuss and fuming
The magnates know we cannot stop
Our ultimate consuming.

The Pretty Cook Wins Out

SHE FORCES THE GROCERY BOY'S HAND

By KENNETT HARRIS.

"SMELL o' that," said the pretty cook, fiercely, thrusting a can under the grocery boy's nose.

The grocery boy took a long sniff, closing his eyes as if in ecstacy. "Great, ain't it?" he exclaimed. "You're like me, Evelina. Some folks is stuck on this here white rose and new-mown hay and patchily, but give me the smell of canned lobster. Course, I don't mean to put on a handkerchief or anything like that, but for plain straight smelling it's most as good as corn beef and cabbage."

"You ape!" exclaimed the pretty cook wrathfully. "For a notion I'd throw it at you. What do you mean by bringing me spoiled stuff? Now I'm all ready for my salad and no lobster."

"What's become of that cross-eyed milkman?" asked the grocery boy.

"You make me tired," said the pretty cook. "What you want to do is to chase yourself back to the shore and get me a can that isn't twenty years old, if you've got one in stock."

"With pleasure," replied the grocery boy. "I'll do so almost immediately. About how old would you like it to be? Now, don't get mad. There's soap now. Soap is all the better after it's aged some. It lasts longer."

Not So Very Bad

"Lobster isn't all the better," snapped the pretty cook.

"It lasts longer, though," insisted the grocery boy. "At the same time, Evelina, that can didn't seem to me to be what you might call bad. You take a can that's really spoiled, and either you or it would have to leave the house, and you'd have the sanitary inspector and a wagon load of police around inside of ten minutes. I should think if you turned it out and aired it an' put a little garlic in your salad dressing it wouldn't hardly be noticeable."

"Are you going to take that back or ain't you?" demanded the pretty cook.

"If you want me to," said the grocery boy. "I'll do anything that you really want. I was just feeling my way, kind of, to make sure I got your ideas correctly. I like my fish fresh, personally, except when it's salt fish. I feel the same way about eggs. There's an egg limit to both of 'em, and when they gets past I'll have to ask you to excuse me. Same way with persons. You take a person when he's about a day or so old and there isn't much harm in him. He begins to ferment and bulge out later on, but he's got to be pretty bad if he won't work up into a chowder or a Spanish omelet. What do you do with plain, common, ordinary eggs that don't make no pretensions to be any better than the average—eggs that have forgotten what the old home nest looked like; it's so long since they left it to go out into the cold, cold storage?"

And Then He Went.

"I send 'em back," said the pretty cook. "Did I understand you to say that you were going to take that lobster and get out of here?"

"I didn't put it in those exact words," said the grocery boy, "but such was my intention, if you concluded that you didn't want it on any terms. It's this way, Evelina; There's often things that we don't like and don't want, but if anybody'll make it worth our while to put up with 'em we'll put up with 'em the best we can. It's like the tariff. The Democrats thought the tariff was pretty rotten, and that parts of it smelled worse than a can of lobster past its first youth; but when it came to cutting it down on cotton and cane and rice, and things like that—but you don't care nothing about politics. The point is that if I put the matter properly to the boss, he might allow you a rebate of maybe twenty-five per cent., and then you might see your way to use it somewhere. See?"

The pretty cook confronted him with her arms akimbo and a not-to-be-trifled-with expression. "You take that can back to the store and have a good one back here inside of six minutes without any more foolishness—see? When a thing's bad enough to argue about, it ain't good enough for me. See? Now you try for the speed record or there'll be a new man in here taking orders to-morrow morning. See?"

"Oh, well, if you feel that way about it, I'll go," said the grocery boy.

The Champion

By KENNETT HARRIS

SHE'S so placid and tame, is the worthy old dame,
So content with her rhythmical rocking,
She's so smiling and stout, not a shadow of doubt
Would be likely to enter your mind.
You would never suppose that she tells all she knows,
That her chief occupation is knocking,
But I'm sorry to say that she does it all day.
She is one of the gossiping kind.
She is knitting a wrap—most especially fitting,
For she's certainly rapping as much as she's knitting.

She's remarkably wise, with a sharp pair of eyes
That you never would think needed glasses,
And her hearing's acute, if in evil repute,
And she's very untiring of tongue.
All about the hotel she will know very well,
Or at least she can guess all that passes,
Howsoever disguised. You'd be really surprised
If you knew half the scandals she's sprung.
When she guesses, it seems, though I grieve to admit it,
That ninety-nine times in a hundred she'll hit it.

It's a talent, indeed, and she ought to succeed,
But her field is so very restricted.
If she only had been on a big magazine
And propelling a powerful pen!
It's a sin and a shame she is not reaping fame
With exposures, to which she's addicted,
It is really her forte, but around this resort
They just call her a meddlesome hen.
Though she seems free of guile and demure as a Quaker,
When it gets down to much she's the champion raker.

WEIGH YOURSELF BEFORE USING

Weigh yourself before commencing to use Samose, the great flesh-forming food. The wonderful sale on this preparation since first introduced in Boston and the remarkable results following its use have made Houghton & Dutton such enthusiastic believers in the great value of Samose that they give their personal guarantee to refund the money if Samose will not make thin people fat and restore strength and health to those who use it.

This is a strong guarantee, but Houghton & Dutton have seen so many of their customers who a few weeks ago looked like walking skeletons become plump and well, solely through the use of Samose that they feel they cannot say too much to induce people to try it. Sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50c.

A Railroad Man's Complaint

Every Man Should Have a Vacation —and with Full Pay.

Copyright, 1910, by American-Journal-Examiner

To the Editor:

Dear Sir—I wish you would publish the facts of the twentieth century slavery of the ticket agents of the Interborough R. T. Company in the metropolis of America.

Reading in your worthy newspaper the utterances of President Taft, that two weeks is not long enough as a vacation for a year's work, I was wondering what would our President say if he had to work fourteen hours out of every twenty-four in the year without getting even as much as two hours as a vacation.

Granting that the hard-working people are not entitled to any rest during the hot months, then why must we starve our families on the five-cent per day raise that we got recently? Does not the average increase in meat and other food stuffs to the average family amount to more than five cents a day?

Still we are very thankful to our benevolent general manager, Mr. Frank Hedley, for the five cents we got; also for the "libraries" and gymnasiums installed at each terminal, as we can feed our children on that improvement. I would be more thankful to you, Mr. General Manager, if you would introduce me to my children, as I am an utter stranger to them.

Having to work fourteen hours, and as riding to and from the station where I am employed takes two hours, there are only eight hours left for sleep, dinner and respite every day in the year. Such is the condition of most every night ticket agent on the Interborough lines, especially so on the Third Avenue line.

We must not openly complain, else we are dismissed from service instantly.

Would it be considered as asking too much if we want at least $2.50 for a twelve-hour day or night, and have one day or night off in a week?

In the name of humanity, we ask the company to consider our reasonable request so as to allow us to get acquainted with our families. Respectfully,

A MODERN SLAVE.

President Taft is a kind-hearted and a good man. His intentions were of the best when he said, so truly, that a vacation of two weeks is insufficient for any hard worker.

But the saying must have had a queer sound to millions in this nation. FOR WITH US THE VERY HARDEST WORKERS HAVE NO VACATION AT ALL—unless they take it at their own expense and at the risk of losing their work.

The letter which we publish above will perhaps be answered by the Interborough management. We shall publish the answer if it comes. Our own impression is that an employe of the Interborough is ALLOWED TO TAKE A VACATION AT HIS OWN EXPENSE IF HE CHOOSES, which is the regulation thing in this country.

And we believe also that men are not compelled to work fourteen hours a day, BUT THEY MAY DO SO IF THEY CHOOSE TO EARN EXTRA MONEY. We should be glad to learn from the employes if this is NOT so.

However, it is wrong that a man should be either COMPELLED or PERMITTED to work fourteen hours a day every day in the year. A corporation that is able to make tens and even hundreds of millions for those that promote it and water its stock might well give two weeks' vacation, with pay, to employes that serve it.

In the case of motormen, at least, it would appear to be a step in the direction of public safety and common sense.

While we publish this letter, there are unfortunately millions of men in the United States who might write letters of even more bitter and more just complaint.

Very truly, a five-cent increase in pay is not much with which to meet the increase in the cost of food and of rent.

And two dollars and a half a day for twelve hours' work in a big city where prices are so high would be none too much.

Yet a great majority of all the men in the United States work for a good deal less than two dollars a day.

There are millions of men that work for one dollar and a half a day, and for less, and that MISS THEIR WORK AND PAY EVERY DAY THAT IT RAINS—THEY ARE COMPELLED TO TAKE MANY A VACATION THAT THEY DON'T WANT, many a vacation of which the painful echo is felt in the stomachs of their children.

President Taft is right when he says that a two-weeks' vacation is not enough for any man. It is not enough. Two months for every workingman and for every woman and for every child, two months change of scene and of air, would be a great thing for the human race and it would not diminish the producing power of the human race at all. A WELL-RESTED RACE, A CHEERFUL RACE, CAN DO MORE WORK THAN A TIRED, DESPONDENT, DISCOURAGED RACE.

If all had work all the time, except vacation time, with plenty of machinery to multiply their productive capacity, it would be a very simple thing to give all the people all the food and all the clothes that they need, money for their rent, AND TWO MONTHS' VACATION BESIDES.

THAT WILL COME.

Of course, it cannot and will not come in a hurry. And it can't come by any revolution, or any violent talk. It must come by INTELLIGENT VOTING, BY INTELLIGENT THINKING, BY DETERMINED, PERSISTENT, UNITED POLITICAL ACTION.

And it ought to start with intelligent co-operation by the big corporations. Those big corporations are managed by men well paid. Those men have their big salaries and their long vacations. They have also their full quota of responsibilities and worries.

And they are especially anxious to hold to those vacations and salaries, worries and responsibilities.

If they are wise, they will see to it, year by year—as a few of them are beginning to do—that the best possible pledge of their own security in the future would be found in constantly better treatment of those that work.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

CHARGES DOCTORS WITH GRAFT

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I wish to call your attention to what I consider the most despicable game of graft in this age of hustle for mere existence. I think an editorial from your ready pen would do a deal of good. It would at least open the eyes of the victims.

The situation is this: A person is ill; calls a physician, whom perhaps he can ill afford. Physician looks wise and writes a prescription, usually recommending some especial druggist he stands in with, and, pocketing his fee, departs. [illegible] cases out of ten the prescription is a [illegible] of some standard preparation [illegible] the Pure Food law compels to be [illegible] parcel. Instead of being suffi[illegible] [illegible]orable to say so, and not only [illegible]ventor the credit and profit, but [illegible] the benefit of it being far [illegible] than a prescription, he palms it off as his own, and it is easy to surmise he receives a "rake-off" from the druggist.

If the victim is shrewd enough to detect it and faces the druggist down, as I have repeatedly, he gets such excuses as "You have to pay for our knowledge," "Where do we druggists come in?" "The physicians don't like us to tell," etc. How much longer is the public going to stand for this?

WOULD EXPOSE OPIUM EVILS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your editorial on the evils of whiskey was the finest I have ever read. I wish you would write on the subject of "Opium" along the same lines. I ask this of you in behalf of my poor brother, who is addicted to the opium habit. Hoping you grant me this favor in the name of suffering humanity, I am, respectfully yours,

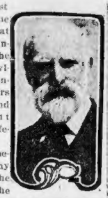
A Great Historian on the Glory of Our Democracy

By AMBASSADOR JAMES BRYCE



"It is a most wholesome idea that education and instruction and the search for knowledge are not confined to the years of youth and preparation, but ought to be lifelong.

"I do not believe there is any country in the world where the desire for knowledge and the means of attaining it are so widely diffused through the whole people as they are in the United States. That is as it ought to be in a free-governed country, where opinion rules; and if public opinion rules, public opinion should be educated and intelligent.

"You are all interested in the political life of your country; one-half of you are voters, and the other half, who do not enjoy that privilege, are not less influential. Therefore I speak to the women as well as the men who are present, as having an interest in civic duty, and who desire to know all that can be known which is of service to citizens in the dscharge of the public dutes of life.

"In all countries that have their own active political life, there are parties; and in all countries one of the greatest difficulties for the citizen is to know how far he ought to obey and follow his party, and how far to stand independent.

"These are questions which every one must solve for himself as they arrive. They are questions about which you cannot lay down general rules, but which make the greatest call on the judgment, the honesty, the conscience; they are questions on which you are getting a great deal of light from the study of the history of parties in the past.

"One of the best things you can learn is when the time has come at which a man should be independent of his party, and when, on the other hand, the time has come when he should stick to the party and bear with it, even if it does not entirely suit, for the sake of what it stands for and wishes to accomplish.

"Now I come to say a word about English history. I am glad, very glad that you devote special attention to it. Early English history is yours; it is American history just as much as English history. The history of the United States did not begin in 1776, nor did it begin in 1607 with the landing of the colony at Jamestown, nor did it begin with the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers on the coast of Massachusetts. It began in the year 446, when a small number of predatory Saxons landed on the coast of England. It even went further back into the forests of Germany, on the banks of the Elbe, from which the Saxon colonists came.

"One special reason why English history is your history, and why you should devote attention to it, is that the great service which was wrought for the world in those centuries, when your ancestors and ours were living together upon English soil, was the service that they rendered for the world in the building up of free institutions. Those free institutions were built on good principles, on two foundations which were brought by your ancestors here, and upon which the fabric of your free government rests just as they rest also in England.

"In the first place, the principles of law, solid, steady, clear, fixed law. All English liberty and all American liberty is based upon the principle of adherence to law.

"The second foundation is yours, that these laws and these principles of liberty were the work of the whole people.

"The whole people made the Constitution. With us it is the whole people who have executed the Constitution. With you it is the whole people guarding the Constitution, to see that it is not infringed. It is in this participation of the whole people, and not of any one class, that the strength of your Government consists. These are ideas and principles common to England and America. They have been preserved with equal sacredness in both countries.

"Principles are easier to follow and understand when they are embodied in men.

"Men stand as spokesmen, examples of virtues, sometimes of evils. And therefore I would say to you, do not neglect the personal side, and do not be afraid of passing away from the consideration of abstract historical questions into personal things that belong to the great characters that have figured in history.

"You have had men in your country who have embodied those principles in their most conspicuous and vivid form; men who have become not only heroes to you and to the whole world, but men whose examples have been most precious to you and to the whole world. I believe that the examples of these men have had a marvelous effect upon you all, in stimulating you to duty toward your country, and in the second place to be courageous in behalf of country. I need not mention these names to you, for you will readily recall them: George Washington and Abraham Lincoln.

"I think in some ways the character of Lincoln is more instructive than that of the other man I have named, because Abraham Lincoln, more than any of the men we know, started from absolutely nothing; he had no advantages at all; fortune had done nothing whatever for him; George Washington was a Virginia gentleman, who received a good education, was reared in cultivated society, and he had opportunities of apprenticeship in those arts of war and peace in which he became so famous. But Abraham Lincoln had no 'chance' at all. I suppose that in all history there is not a case of a man who did more for men than he.

"Every citizen should think of others as well as of himself, and must constantly be doing his duty to the others, that the country may stand and prosper. The doctrine that we ought to do our duty to others as well as ourselves is true of nations as well as of individuals. A nation does not live to itself any more than an individual. We have a duty to all humanity. It is not, indeed, so near, but just as clear and strong as the duty we owe to our own country.

"I am happy to think that there is no country in which the desire for the promotion of universal peace and the promotion of the methods of staying the ravages of war has received so great approval from the whole body of people as has been shown in the United States.

"You have got also to set an example of orderly freedom, order, not license or caprice, but participation in the same rights and their enforcement impartially.

"You have got to set an example to the Governments for the benefit of all and not for any one class. The dangers of class government come up in very insidious form, in different forms in different countries. In every country, in a democracy, there will be people who set their own interests against those of the whole people, and one of the needs of a democracy is to prove that there are duties to others, and the Government should not be for a class, but for the whole people.

"You have vast regions of fertile country, regions in which there is room for all. You have an unequalled security; no enemies in the world. You have had a people in whom there has been a higher love of education and practical knowledge than, probably, has ever been seen or devised before in the midst of any other nation.

"Therefore, with these unexampled benefits that Providence has bestowed upon you, you seem especially called to be an example to other countries of what democracy may accomplish."

He Writes About How Pa Was "Kidded"

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

THARE was a funny woman wich calm to our house last nite. Her naim was Amelia Affabel. Ma toald Pa that the lady was a humorist. I doant dout it at all, sed Pa. She looks funny. I think I will do a littel quiet kidding with her, sed Pa. Then Ma introdused Pa to the humorist.

I am pleesed to meet you, sed Miss Affabel. It is mutual, sed Pa, except being pleesed. I mean, sed Pa, that the meeting is mutual. Do you know any new joaks?

The only new joak I know, sed Miss Affabel, is the one I have jest been interduced to.

Ha Ha, sed Pa, thare is sum class to you. At first, Pa sed, I was afrade that you were going to be one of them sour old skool teechers that used to tell me how to find the square root of No. 23. It is always refreshing to meet a gurl with brains.

It must be refreshing, sed Miss Affabel. Wen a man meets a gurl with brains he beecums inspired. He yearns for higher & better things, like quiet & tasty clothes, insted of the spangles you are wearing. Them clothes look tight, she toald Pa, & they must be awfully hard to put on. Thay wud be hard to put on if they was loose she toald Pa. They are a freeze.

Wife, sed Pa, who is this person? But Ma didént anser. Ma was ovver in the corner, laffing.

Nevver mind, wife, sed Pa. I will have my revenge ere long. Wait till I think of sumthing to say. A lady has to be a long time in the league, Pa sed, to kid me. But she did kid you, sed Ma, dident she? No, sed Pa, she prubly ment to kid me, but she was away off.

Jest then Miss Affabel calm back into the room after she had took off her cloak & hat. I am always glad to meet the husbands of my frends she sed to Ma, espeshully wen thay are good, honest-looking fellows like this person here. He seems to have a good coat of barroom tan, she sed to Ma.

I have offen notised it, sed Ma. It was on him wen I married him, only in them days it was kind of pale.

All of my face was pale wen I married you, sed Pa. You cudent expeck anything else. The reddest nose & the reddest compleckshun in the wurld will pale wen the owner of it is approaching the altar to git tied up dubbel.

Didént yure wife git pale at all, sed Miss Affabel? I shud think it wud have been her wich faltered & backed up.

You doant tell me, sed Pa. Well, Miss Affabel, sed Pa, if you want to hear the truth, I am afrade that th only way you will evver git a man to walk up the aisle with you will be to pretend that you are a bridesmaid & that he is a best man. Then wen you got him up to the altar you can say April fool, & he will be yures for worse or worser. Now, sed Pa, go hoam and tell yure fiancee that you kidded the gratest kidder that evver lived. Will you permit me, sed Pa, to hold the door ajar wile you pass out?
